3 AMERICANS KILLED, 2 HURT AS SHELLS BLAST SHANGHAI

EXTRA Death in the Afternoon! A City Bombed!

By M. C. FORD
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Shanghai, Aug 14—(Filed at 6 p. m.)—This is a story of death in the afternoon, of the horror and tragedy and chaos of war when it strikes the vitals of a cosmopolitan city.

For several hours, from a vantage point in the comparative sanctuary of the international settlement, I witnessed the battle between Japanese and Chinese airplanes, shore batteries and warships rolling in the angry swells of the typhoon-rocked Whangpoo river.

I saw bombs fall from sullen skies to wipe out the lives of hundreds of peaceful citizens and reduce to shambles great modern buildings. I saw craters twenty feet deep torn into busy highways.

And in the havoc wrought was clearly etched an omen of things to come if the world is ever again plunged into general conflict, for Shanghai, the least Oriental of all Oriental cities, is not so different from Paris or London or Berlin.

Had the bombers actually wished to wipe out civilian life they could not have chosen better targets than two spots in the heart of Shanghai which were transformed into charnel houses.

One was on the Nanking road, just outside of the Palace Hotel. The Nanking road might be called the Fifth avenue of Shanghai, but its traffic is more like Broadway. At any hour of the day it is choked with autos and pedestrians. Taxis crawl through the glutted thoroughfare and rickshas drawn by agile coolies weave in and out.

In the midst of all this bustle of humanity dropped flaming

HUNT THREAT WRITER IN R. I. DEATH

Providence, Aug. 14—Police today hunted the writer of a $20,000 "threat of death" note as a direct link in the murder of Dr. George W. Webster.

As the chase took shape, Captain Thomas J. Rattigan hurled a charge of "bad faith" at J. Edgar Hoover and his G-men.

G-men revealed closely guarded information in connection with the Webster slaying Rattigan declared.

The extortion note was a deeply guarded secret, Rattigan said, until the Department of Justice agents disregarded pleas and gave the tip which broke the story yesterday.

The later entered the case when police referred the extortion notes to Benjamin Hatfield, postal inspector in charge of this district.

"Everyone asked that the matter be kept confidential," Captain Rattigan said. "With this understanding we referred the matter to the postal inspectors. They

U. S. MARINE DIES, 4 HURT IN CHASE

A free-for-all fight in a Salisbury roadhouse and an automobile chase by state troopers to the Massachusetts-New Hampshire line, ended in a crash at Seabrook, N. H., early today, causing the death of a U. S. Marine Corps enlisted man, the injury of three other marines, one critically, and a fifth man, civilian driver of the car in which they were riding.

DEAD

Harry Rein, 21, of a fractured skull. Attached to the United States Marine Corps base at Portsmouth, N. H.

INJURED

A three-man board to investigate the accident and what preceded it was appointed by Rear Admiral Cyrus W. Cole, commandant of Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard, where the marines were stationed.

FREE-FOR-ALL

Police said the men were dining and dancing in a resort at Salisbury when a free-for-all fight broke out.

Police were summoned and the Marines, witnesses said, climbed in Remis's car. Rein and Randall, police said, hung on the running board as the car sped toward New Hampshire.

Six Russian Pole Fliers Missing

Fear Plane Down in Arctic Wilds

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 14 (AP)—Northland aviators, alarmed at news from six Russian aviators that one motor of their four-motored monoplane had failed, used by their planes today, ready to fare out over the bleak Arctic snowfields where they fear the Russians may have been forced down.

Sigismund Levanevskiy, pilot of the plane with which Russia was pioneering a proposed transpolar Moscow-United States airline, disappeared Moscow the motors had failed.

More than three hours later at 9 A. M. on Friday, EST, the last message received at Moscow said merely:

"How do you hear me? Wait."

Levanevskiy said he intended to proceed here on three motors. He said a damaged oil line put the engine out of commission but gave no hint he and his five companions intended to interrupt their flight intended to end at Oakland, Calif. A few seconds later Moscow lost contact with the fliers.

The plane was 15 hours overdue here at 3 a. m. EDT, and an increasing number of observers believed it might already be down in 4,000 miles here from Moscow. Weather was reported good in Northern Alaska, but the Soviet weather camp near the North Pole said the sky there was overcast, with visibility between ten and 12 miles. The temperature was 31 degrees Fahrenheit.

3 NOTED AMERICANS KILLED IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Aug. 14 (AP)—At least three prominent Americans in Shanghai were killed and two other Americans wounded today in Chinese-Japanese aerial warfare that hurled death into crowded parts of the International Settlement.

Dr. Frank J. Rawlinson, one of the outstanding missionaries in China, whose headquarters were in Boston, and H. S. Honiberg, wealthy motorcar dealer, met death as Chinese bombing planes, supposedly aiming at Japanese concentrations, dumped their missiles into crowded downtown areas, killing hundreds.

REV. FRANK J. RAWLINSON
Boston mission leader killed in Shanghai air raid

Dr. Robert Reischauer, identified by the United States consulate as a professor of international relations at Princeton, was hit by a bomb in the lobby of the Palace Hotel on Nanking road and died a few hours later in a hospital. His leg was blown off.

500 FEARED DEAD

It was feared other Americans were among those killed and wounded by pilots at 500.

Those people died horribly in two terrific bombings, one near the Cathay Hotel at the intersection of Nanking road and the Bund, heart of the international settlement; the other at the junction of Avenue Edward VII and Thibet road, in the French concession.

The two Americans known wounded were J. M. Keeley, employee of Hawkins & Keeley, New York accountants, and R. R. Rouse of Los Angeles.

Native Chinese warplanes roared over the city, striking at Japanese warships and troop concentrations, but apparently raining the greatest havoc on the foreign controlled sections of the city.

3 Americans Slain in China; Hundreds Die

Besides the two Americans, several other foreigners were reported killed.

WIFE, GIRL ESCAPE

Dr. Rawlinson and Honiesberg died in the bombing of Avenue Edward VII, at one of the busiest intersections of the city, where an estimated 300, mostly Chinese, were killed.

Dr. Rawlinson, 66, with his wife and 15-year-old daughter, Jean, were motoring past the intersection when teh bombs fell. He stopped the car and stepped out, to be struck in the chest by a bomb fragment. He died at once.

Mrs. Rawlinson, although suffering from shellshock, drove the car to the foreign mortuary, turned over the body of her husband and then collapsed. Jean was not hurt.

Dr. Rawlinson was editor of the Chinese Recorder, supported by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, with headquarters in Boston. Besides his wife and daughter, he is survived by one son here and six grown sons and daughters in the United States.

WOMAN KILLED, TOO

The bombings came late in the afternoon when Shanghai streets were teeming. It would have been difficult to find places where air-bombs would have taken a more terrible toll.

Japanese planes were in the air to oppose the Chinese, apparently catapulted from warships lying in the winding Whangpoo, but they were ineffective.

The body of Honigsberg, who had lived in Shanghai more than 20 years and was one of the most prominent American residents, was found in a motorcar burned beyond recognition. Police established identification by papers in a pocket in the car.

A number of blond heads were seen by an eyewitness in truck-loads of supposedly Chinese dead picked up on Avenue Edward VII by police and firemen.

Police estimated that 200, nearly all Chinese, died in the blast on Nanking road, where a bomb, striking the street between the Cathay and Palace Hotels, tore a huge hole, tossing bodies for yards.

It was here that Kerbey suffered slight wounds.

HIS FAMIL UNHURT

House, former United States marine now working in Shanghai, was wounded in the left shoulder and knee when caught in a cross-fire when Chinese planes bombed the Japanes Cruiser Izumo, flagship of Japan's naval forces here. His wife and child, with him at the time, were uninjured.

American authorities expressed grave fears for the safety of an unknown number of Americans believed to be still trapped in battle zones north of Soochow Creek, which runs through the international settlement. In that district the Chinese-Japanese battle continued throughout the day, although overshadowed by the bombings of the foreign areas.

United States consular, naval and marine officers worked feverishly to establish contact with their nationals in the battle zones, but it was almost impossible to enter them.

FLED DANGER TO DIE

Reischauer, the third American fatality, was the son of American missionaries living in Tokyo, where he was born. He was making a study tour of the Far East.

He reached Shanghai only a few days ago and had moved only today from the Astor House hotel, on Soochow creek, to the Palace hotel, believing the latter, farther from the Japanese center of operations, would be safer.

Bernhard Covit, formerly of Brooklyn, NN. Y., who witnessed the bombing on Avenue Edward VII, gave this account of the scene:

"I walked into the square formed by Edward VII and Thibet road just after two Chinese bombs fell in the center of the avenue, forming a huge hole, which was quickly filled with water. The pavement had been torn up in long strips.

SCENES OF HORROR

"Mangled and mutilated bodies of some 300 apparently Chinese, were lying in the streets. I counted at least 12 automobiles burned and twisted, some containing unrecognizable, contorted bodies.

"Huge blotches of blood and fragments of humand flesh lay on the pavement. The smell was sickening.

"Dominating this corner is the 'Great World' amusement center, in normal times the resort of thousands of Chinese each night, but recently used as living quarters for Chinese refugees pouring in from Chapei, Yangtsepoo and Hongkew (areas embraced in the war zone).

"This building was badly damaged, throwing the refugees into shrieking terror. Windows in buildings for blocks around were shattered.

BLONDES AMONG DEAD

"Foreign and Chinese police and foreign firemen appeared quickly, lifting the bodies to trucks. Many of the bodies looked mummified and inhuman. In spite of reports that only Chinese were involved, I saw several blond heads among the truck-loads of bodies."

(It was here that Dr. Rawlinson and Honigsberg were killed.)

The Shanghai American Chamber of Commerce cabled the United States Marines, 1050 officers and men, on patrol duty along the nothern edge of the international settlement and all available civilian volunteers were under arms.

The American emergency committee drafted measures to promote the safety of the American community of 4000.

Two Russians were reported killed at this place.

EXPERT TOSS SPEEDY

Sixteen Chinese planes zoomed over the city in a bomb attack on Chinese warships and troop concentrations.

Late in the afternoon, one Japanese plane continued to circle motor, but apparently it was too slow to catch Chinese aircraft, which disappeared in a bank of clouds to the west.

Two bombs fell in the French concession, exploding in a densely populated area at the corner of Avenue Edward VI and Thibet road. It was estimated that 300 Chinese, mostly shop and office workers were killed. The force of the explosions was so terrific that some pedestrians were blown to bits.

The U. S. patrol vessel Sacramento left its position off the French concession and steamed alongside the power company plant. Thirty sailors were sent ashore to guard the property and try to keep the plant from being damaged to the extent that Shanghai would be merged into darkness.

AMERICANS FLEE PERIL

Americans living at the Astor House Hotel and the Broadway Mansions, on the bank of the Soochow were among the first foreigners to leave the danger zone.

Machine guns and rifle guns were set up outside the hotel. A squad of Japanese was reported to have searched the Astor House for an American photographer.

On the north bank of Soochow Creek, the French Catholic hospital was evacuating patients who wished to leave.

Every available civilian volunteer joined the 1050 United States marines patroling the settlement.

The aerial onslaught unbridled by 8 p.m. but heavy cannonading continued in Shanghai's environs. It was believed Japanese warships down the Whangpoo river were shelling Chinese positions in Klangwan and Chapei areas.

Japanese planes, apparently from aircraft carrier Admiral Hosho of the Chinese Woosung forts, were said to have bombed Klangwan, north of Shanghai, during the evening, starting new fires and killing an undetermined number of Chinese.

BULLETINS

Shanghai, Aug. 14 (INS)—Taking up positions fronting the smaller Japanese force along the fringe of the International Settlement, another Nationalist Chinese army division arrived here today. Seven more divisions are on the Nanking-Shanghai railway, and five on the Hangchow-Shanghai road, ready to dash to Shanghai.

Hong Kon., Aug. 14 (INS)—A regiment of British Royal Welsh Fusiliers sailed for Shanghai aboard the transport Maron today to reinforce troops already on duty there. A detachment of Ulster Rifles was understood standing by in readiness to proceed to Shanghai.

London, Aug 14 (INS)—Shocked by the killing of civilians in Shanghai, the British government today was expected to make strong representations to Nanking to exclude the waterfront port from further hostilities. Evacuation of all British and American residents is considered likely.

Washington, Aug. 14 (INS)—The U. S. destroyer Peary was speeding today from Manila to Shanghai to reinforce the heavy cruiser Augusta, flagship of the United States Asiatic fleet. The navy announced the destroyer left Manila last night and was due in the strife-torn Chinese city Monday. Other warships of the Asiatic fleet are at the Chinese ports of Tsingtao and Chefoo.

Late in the afternoon the heavy cruiser Augusta, flagship of the United States Asiatic fleet, arrived from Tsingtao and anchored in the Whangpoo three miles above the heart of Shanghai.

MARINES ON JOB

The Fourth Regiment of United States Marines, 1050 officers and men, was on patrol duty along the nothern edge of the international settlement and all available civilian volunteers were under arms.

The American emergency committee drafted measures to promote the safety of the American community of 4000.

Two Russians were reported killed at this place.

International News Photos, Inc. Cable.

Here's where shot and shell rained down in Shanghai today, to peril lives of Americans and other foreigners and to litter the streets in the city of 3,500,000 souls with dead. Note the prominent places mentioned in the news: The Astor House Hotel, Broadway mansions, bridges over Soochow creek, the consulates, and the wharves—some of which have been burned.

Hub Missionary Loses Life in China War

Rev. Frank J. Rawlinson, who was killed in Shanghai today, was one of the best informed men in the world on the work being done in China by Christians, according to local officials of the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions, under whose auspices he worked.

He was editor of the Chinese Recorder, a monthly magazine devoted to missionary work in China, having held this post since 1912.

He also was editor of the Chinese Christian Year Book, an annual publication that summarized the Christian work being done among the Chinese.

IN CHINA SINCE 1902

Doctor Rawlinson first went to China in 1902 under auspices of Southern Baptist Convention. In 1922 he was transferred at his own request to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

He was born in Rutlandshire, England, 66 years ago and was educated in Bucknell University, Lewisburg Pa., graduating in 1896. From there he went to Rochester Theological Seminary, from which he graduated in 1902. Following his graduation he went immediately to Shanghai, where he had since lived.

He was married twice. His second wife was Florence Lang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lang, of Angola, Ind.

He was the father of eight children, three of whom were born to his second wife.

2 CHILDREN IN CHINA

The children born to his second wife are Jean, 14, and John, 16, both of whom lived with their parents in the French concession in Shanghai, and Ruth, 18, a student at Oberlin College, Ohio.

Dr. Rawlinson's second wife studied at Syracuse University but did not graduate. She went to Colondo, Ceylon, as general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. there in 1910, and remained until 1916. She returned to Shanghai where, it was believed Japanese warships down the Whangpoo river were shelling Chinese positions in Klangwan and Chapei areas.

Japanese planes, apparently from aircraft carrier Admiral Hosho of the Chinese Woosung forts, were said to have bombed Klangwan, north of Shanghai, during the evening, starting new fires and killing an undetermined number of Chinese.

WRITER'S GRAPHIC STORY

death—huge incendiary bombs from Chinese airplanes flying high over the city. Their target presumably was a Japanese warship in the river, but their altitude and the twisting typhoon winds threw the missiles far out of range.

Six hundred yards away, at the busy junction where the Avenue Edward VII meets Tibet road, more bombs fell and there the same scenes of horror were enacted.

On the Nanking road, approximately 150 persons were killed and wounded, and at the other intersection there were 200 casualties.

I went to the once-busy corner, not out of curiosity but in an effort to establish identities of the four Americans reported killed and to obtain some reliable estimate of the total casualties.

Horror of Life, Death

In the yawning crater which a few minutes before had been a thriving corner in the Far East's busiest metropolis there were approximately 200 human beings, or the remains of them.

Scores were dead—just how many no one knew. Many others were shocked into unconsciousness. Some were seen squirming desperately in an effort to free themselves from the mass of rubble and splintered timber which fell upon them.

Those who still lived and remained conscious screamed the horrible cries of utter despair. Sirens of fire engines and ambulances rushing to the scene mingled with these heart-rending cries. There was blood and broken glass and severed limbs and bits of clothing torn from bodies by the force of explosions. There was heroism, too, but so much that was ghastly that all else paled.

Whatever could be done to alleviate suffering was done. Neatly uniformed Chinese Boy Scouts, suddenly faced with tragedy of a sort to shake the nerve of veterans thrice their years, pitched into the work of rescue along with firemen and policemen.

Bodies were brought out and laid in rows along the sidewalks, covered with tarpaulin. The injured were rushed to hospitals over roads pitted by bombs and shells.

The shelling of Shanghai will probably go down as accidental. The wind played havoc with gunners' aims, but there also was some downright poor marksmanship. Shells from Japanese anti-aircraft guns fell all over the hund, and with each deafening crash came more deaths, more injuries, more destruction.

Hunt Providence Threat Writer as Killing Link turned it over the Department of Justice.

"The Department of Justice in Washington handed out the information as they did at the time that a boy threatened the life of former Governor Theodore F. Green.

"The same situation was a confidential one and Mr. Hoover's department immediately gave the picture nation-wide publicity, after we had apprehended the youth and sent him to a psychopathic hospital.

"The Providence police took no chances and covered everything and will cover everything, but we feel that the entire situation is one that should be given the attention of the police."

In the hope that capture of the mysterious extortionist might be the unexpected break in the Webster case, full forces of city and state were mobilized to that end here today.

Startling activities of the latest phantom entry in the bizarre slaying on July 16 of the physician include a threat letter and demand for $20,000 from Deputy City Collector Philip E. Cunningham and similar threats against many others.

As revealed exclusively in yesterday's Boston Evening American, the latest writer showed a remarkable knowledge of the exclusive East Side section which includes the Emmins street home where Dr. Webster was shot down in his own hallway.

The "phantom extortionist" in a well-worded letter, predicted death not only for Cunningham, if he failed to obey orders, but also threatened to take the life of Cunningham's 12-year-old son.

They were basing their case on three legal issues:

That there was no vacancy on the court.

That neither Black nor any other member of Congress is eligible for the post, because its emoluments have been increased.

CONSTITUTIONAL POINT

Both of the latter points were based on a Constitutional injunction that:

"No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time."

Senator Borah (R.) of Idaho, principal advocate of the theory there is no vacancy on the Court, voted in the subcommittee yesterday to approve Black's nomination. He reserved immediately the legal question for a meeting of the full committee.

"NO VACANCY" SAYS BORAH

Black was appointed to succeed Justice Van Devanter, who left the bench under the new retirement law, in June. Borah contended that under the law Van Devanter was still a justice and there was no vacancy.

He argued further that if there was a vacancy, it was a new post created by the retirement act.

Black's friends declared those objections were "highly legalistic" and said they would not be upheld by most members of the committee.

Sen. White, Maine, Opposed to Black

Washington, Aug. 14 (AP)—Senator Wallace H. White, Jr., Maine Republican, said tonight that he would vote against confirmation of Senator Black (D.) of Alabama, to the Supreme Court "on constitutional grounds."

White said he did not wish to comment further.

He described as "sound," however, the argument of Senator Austin (R.), of Vermont, that Black was ineligible for the appointment because of the retirement of justices was passed while he was a member of Congress.

Washington, Aug. 14 (AP)—Statements from a majority of the members of the Senate Judiciary committee assured today a favorable report, probably Monday, on the nomination of Senator Black (D.) of Alabama to the Supreme Court.

Ten committee members said they would vote to confirm the Alabaman, co-sponsor of the administration wage-hour bill.

Three members were definitely opposed, while four others still were noncommittal. Two of these were leaning toward confirmation, one against.

Despite this lineup and 5-1 approval yesterday by a sub-committee, the battle over Black's nomination was far from ended. A little group in the Senate was combing his record and looking up legal precedents to use against confirmation.

KLAN ISSUE RAISED

One opposition senator said an effort was being made to investigate Black's career before he reached the Senate with particular reference to reports that he was aligned with the Ku Klux Klan.

Others among the opposition, however, declared they would have nothing to do with such an inquiry. They said they were basing their case purely on the legal question of the Alabaman's eligibility.

Black himself could not be reached early today for comment about the Klan report.

On all sides, it was agreed Black could be confirmed unless something was turned up to change the present lineup.

Senator Burke (D.-Neb.), one of the open opponents of confirmation, said there probably would not be more than 20 or 25 votes against Black. Some others said this estimate was too high.

ONLY 6 TAKE "NO" STAND

Up to today only six senators had declared definitely against the Alabaman, although many of his Southern colleagues had refused to express themselves one way or the other.

Opposition came entirely from Republicans and Democrats of the so-called conservative group which opposed the Roosevelt court bill.

U. S. WARNS BRITAIN ON PALESTINE PLAN

Washington, Aug. 14 (US)—The United States has warned Great Britain it will consider invalid any partition of Palestine infringing the rights of this government or of its nationals.

The warning was set forth in two notes made public today by Secretary of State Hull. In them he exacted of the British foreign office a promise to ask United States assent to any points in the partition plan affecting American interests.

In making the promise, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said Britain welcomed the interest shown by the United States in the solution of the Palestine problem.

Eden disclosed Britain will ask consent of the League of Nations council in September for the proposed division of the strife-torn Holy Land, into independent Jewish and Arab states.

2 NOTES SENT

This government's notes were handed Eden by American Ambassador Bingham on July 6 and August 4. The British replied only to the first.

In the first note Bingham advised Britain the government reached on explanation "at the earliest possible moment" of the Palestine royal commission's then unpublished partition plan.

Under the 1924 British-American convention, Britain reminded the United States reserved all rights and privileges accorded League of Nations members by the league in granting Britain its Palestine mandate.

In reply, Eden asserted American rights were limited to those enumerated in Articles 2 and 6 of the mandate convention, and added:

"The United States, having assented by Article 1 of the convention to the mandate as a whole, it follows that the United States have accepted the provision of Article 27 which lays down that the mandate may be altered with consent of the league."

REITERATES STAND

A divergent view was taken by Bingham in his second note. There in he reiterated the stand taken by this government at the dissolution of Britain's league mandate over Irak.

Without insisting upon fulfillment of any of the rights in that state, the United States at that time informed Britain and in Bingham's note repeated that:

"This is not to be construed as an abandonment of the principle established in 1924 that the approval of the United States is essential to the validity of any declaration which may be reached regarding mandated territories."

Lord Runciman Dead at London

London, Aug. 14 (INS)—England's "grand old man of shipping," Lord Runciman, father of Viscount Runciman, president of the British board of trade, was dead at the age of 90 today.

The elder Runciman ran away to sea when he was 12 and became a ship's captain at 24. Twenty-six years after he went to sea, he owned his own ship, and at the beginning of the World War he owned a fleet of 40.

'BOLOMANIA' PROVES RAGE

DOROTHY PERLINGTON ELIZABETH BLANCHARD JOHNNY BROWN PEGGY DAVIS DOROTHY JARVIS GRACE DAVIS MARION ZIROSKY DESIREE ROGERS

Rockport 'Blue Laws' Mocked In Voodoo Ball

Rockport, Aug. 14—Just a few steps from the art shops, closed on Sundays by a resurrected "blue law," Rockport's artist colony staged its 17th annual costume ball into early today, a gay affair at which attempted restrictions on Bohemian tastes sounded like hollow mockery.

Amid the eerie atmosphere of dim lights and weird cubistic paintings, of witch-doctors and Negro charmers and Haiti's "black magic" symbols, this town's select summer colony played at "voodooism" into the wee hours.

The more than 300 elite who turned out en masse for the event had little thought for the stern court edict that frowned on artists' studios, ordering that they be closed to tourist trade on the Sabbath.

IT'S THE "BOLOMANIA"

In Tahitian and Haitian dress and smeared with Hollywood's famed "bolomania" to give their flesh the authentic brown shade, the celebrators "out-voodooed voodooism"—this year's ball theme, because the affair fell on the mysterious, unlucky Friday the 13th.

As an aftermath of the ball two of the merrymakers were fined $5 each in Gloucester District court today for drunkenness.

Appearing in his scanty dancing costume of the night before, Baron Kulik of Salem, one of those fined, created a sensation in the courtroom. The other was Frank Ripley, of Troy, N. H.

An unhappy footnote to the affair was written when George G. Aldrich, 47, of Clyde street, Brookline, was taken to Addison Gilbert hospital with cuts, bruises and a possible skull fracture after his car had gone over an embankment on Eastern avenue, Gloucester.

ORCHESTRA "IN TUNE"

Held in the town hall, which had been decorated in keeping with the Haitian motif, the brilliant event drew hundreds of tourists from all parts of the North Shore who parked in cars or stood outside the entrance to witness the arrival of guests.

The orchestra, dressed—or undressed—in keeping with the voodoo theme, played jazz to the sound of a tom-tom while the scantily-clad dancing couples swayed under a center light studded with imitation skulls and witchcraft charms.

All were required to wear costumes. The majority stuck to the voodoo theme, going to the lengthy process of darkening their skins, yet some appeared as Spanish senoritas, toreadors, sailors and other characters. A few even wore bathing suits.

HALF-CASTE OUTFIT

The "most beautiful costume" prize was won by Mrs. Julie B. Kirlin of Watson road, Belmont, who wore a half-caste outfit—a black silk shawl draped about her body and a headpiece of African charms.

The "funniest and most typical costume" prize went to Mr. and Mrs. John Briscoe, of Prescott street, Cambridge, who bedecked themselves as typical Haitians. Mrs. Briscoe wore a gaily-plaided dress, a bowler straw hat and high-button shoes. She had gold earrings and carried a doll. Both she and her husband were heavily made up with bolomania.

Jasper Van Atten, of Boston, took the prize for the "most typically voodooistic" costume. He wore a black mask with rings in his nose, horns and a long white robe.

FISHNET ENSEMBLE

One of the most daring costumes was worn by Mrs. George Rower, of Coolidge Hill, Cambridge, who arrived with Thomas O'Brien, Harvard graduate school student, too late for the judging.

Tall and blonde, Mrs. Rower wore a fishnet skirt, a skull cap and two imitation lobster pots at each side of her waist.

Other attractive costumes were worn by Desiree Rogers, daughter of Professor Robert E. Rogers of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston Evening American columnist, and Sherry King, Harvard student, who came as a slave and her overseer.

Viola Williams, of Beverly Farms, and Alphonsus Kasimer, of Marblehead, attended as Tahitian man and maid and Natalie Farmer of New York and Buck Rock was effective as a Spanish senorita.

Among other socialites who attended the ball were Mr. and Mrs. Minor W. Allen, Mrs. Waite Allen, Mrs. Mildred B. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Beal, Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Beal, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Chamberlain, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tuttlebrite, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Cady, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grant, Mr and Mrs. Charles Rosebault, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodworth.

LOWELL 3 HELD IN STRIKE RIOT

Lowell, Aug. 14—Three persons, one a 17-year-old girl, were held for district court today on charges of attack on a group of workers of the Wolf Manufacturing Company, strike-bound since April 7.

Two automobiles of loyal workers were stoned yesterday at the gates to the factory on Chelmsford street.

Those arraigned today gave their names as Orlando Schipiro, 20, his sister, Rose, 17, both of Dracut, and Harry J. Ford, 29, of Bridge street, Lowell.

FIRST LADY'S RED FETE AID HIT

New City, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Caroline O'Day, representative-at-large, and leading members of Rockland County's artist colony prepared for a charity fiesta today for the benefit of children of Spanish government refugees, acting over the protests of some prominent Catholic laymen.

In going ahead with plans for the fiesta this afternoon on the estate of Adolph Zukor, motion picture producer, Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. O'Day and others who intended to be there ignored the protests of Mrs. Alice O'Leary, wife of Arthur T. O'Leary, New York attorney and head of the Catholic Laymen's League.

Those planning to aid or take part in the carnival included many artists, actors and writers, among them Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess Meredith, Charles McArthur and his wife, Helen Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hecht, Rollo Peters, Louis Bromfield and Mrs. Henry Varnum Poor.

Mrs. O'Leary protested by telegram to Mrs. O'Day, suggesting that the money from the fiesta be used by the American Red Cross or be distributed equally between refugee groups of both sides of the Spanish conflict.

N.Y. MAN KILLS 2 CHILDREN, SELF

"Now say good — father. Come now, say good bye to your father."

He said it so often it aroused his wife, Vera, she revealed today.

Today she understood. Late last night her husband took a 22-caliber rifle, killed two of his three daughters as they slept.

He shot the third child, Jane, 8. She was taken to a hospital in critical condition.

5 'Mass Deaths' Laid to Woman By Prosecutor

Cincinnati, Aug. 14 (AP)—Prosecutor Ostcalt turned today to new leads in what he termed "one of the biggest mass murders in this country." Mrs. Anna Filser Hahn, comely blonde, faced arraignment on a murder charge in one of five listed deaths.

Asserting we are investigating three more deaths," Ostcalt initiated a larger figure than the apparent total, and said the deaths covered a period of eight years.

"It's hard to tell where this thing will stop," he declared.

Mrs. Hahn, 31-year-old former school teacher of Munich, Germany, is charged with the poison death of George Guellman, 67, a divorced recluse. Guellman was found dead in bed July 8. Ostcalt said a woman identified as Mrs. Hahn was seen in his company the night before.

AUTOPSY REVEALS POISON

City Chemist O. P. Behrer reported finding traces of metallic and oil poisons in vital organs and the viscera of Guellman's body. Police found in Mrs. Hahn's $12,000 home a bottle which Behrer said contained a metallic poison similar to that detected in Guellman's vital tracts.

Commented Ostcalt:

"The finding of this substance in Mrs. Hahn's home convinces me she used two poisons."

Philip Hahn, the woman's telegrapher-husband earlier turned over to authorities a half-emptied one-ounce bottle of a dysentric oil which doctors agreed was fatal if administered in doses of more than six drops.

SEEKS DEATH CLUES

Developments in the case brought an appeal from Ostcalt:

"I wish," he said, "that anyone, anywhere, having knowledge of mysterious deaths, would communicate with me."

George J. Obendoerfer, 67, moderately wealthy Cincinnati cobbler, who died Aug. 1 in a Colorado Springs hospital. Jacob Wagner, 78, June 3; Albert Palmer, 72, March 27, and Ernest Bohler, elderly teamster who died in 1933, bequeathing to Mrs. Hahn the home in which she resided with Hahn and her 12-year-old son, Oscar.

POISON SALE TRACED

Acting Detective Chief Patrick Hayes said Mrs. Hahn admitted having known four of the men; that she ministered to them during their illness, but denied giving them anything harmful. She denied knowing Guellman.

Carroll Deming, a druggist, told Captain Hayes he sold Mrs. Hahn a bottle of the oil-poison three years ago.

Serving of the murder warrant on Mrs. Hahn late yesterday balked efforts of her attorneys to obtain her freedom on a writ of habeas corpus.

Insisting she had "nothing to fear," Mrs. Hahn posed readily for newspaper cameramen. Previously she had screamed defiance at them and hid her features.

"Here I am, boys," she smiled, "make this a good picture of me."

"But how shall it be murder?" she asked concerning the warrant. "How can they make such a charge? I am not guilty. I can face anything that is to come."

4th Child Slaying Spurs N. Y. Drive

International News Photograph Service

Hysterical with grief, Mrs. Marie Menton is being comforted by neighbors after the body of her four-year-old granddaughter, Joan Kuleba, had been found in a vacant beach bungalow on Staten Island, N. Y. The child had been attacked and strangled.

New York, Aug. 14 (AP)—New York City's fourth slaying of a little girl in five months welded police, legislative, penological, and judicial forces today in an unprecedented drive against crimes of sex degeneracies.

While investigation of the latest slaying centered about the story of a 39-year-old WPA project painter who told police he found the body, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine drew plans for a new bureau to keep all known degenerates under continual surveillance.

Police persisted in their questioning of the WPA painter, Samuel Elmore, who told them he found the nude and strangled body of four-year-old Joan Kuleba in the basement of an abandoned shack in a swamp near South Beach, Staten Island, yesterday.

With the Kuleba case remaining unsolved, city officials seeking to prevent similar attacks, said that under the new police bureau, known degenerates would be brought in for questioning the moment they did anything unusual. Steps would be taken to have them detained for a psychiatric examination.

The mayor proposed in addition that all persons convicted of sex offenses be committed to Bellevue Hospital for observation at the expiration of their sentences.

Magistrate Anna M. Kross urged that a psychiatrist and a physician be stationed in all magistrates' courts to examine defendants suspected of sex delinquency.

8000 Silk Strikers Win Wage Increase

New York, Aug. 14 (AP)—An agreement was signed early today between some 60 silk and rayon manufacturers of New Jersey and Pennsylvania employing about 8000 workers and the Textile Workers Organizing Committee, an affiliate of the CIO, ending the week-old silk strike in their plants, it was announced at the union offices.

The agreement, union officials said, called for increases throughout the industry's complicated piece work scale, a minimum wage of $15 a week, time and one-half for overtime and recognition of the union shop.

Miss Joan Ransom To Wed in N. H.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 14 (AP)—Mrs. Philip Cox Ransom today announced the engagement of her daughter, Joan, to Samuel Franklin Engs, 2nd, of Darien, Conn., and New York City. The wedding is scheduled for Sept. 18.

Ship Strike Blocks Provincetown Trip

Hundreds of women and children prepared for a day's outing at Provincetown met with disappointment today when 85 seamen aboard the Bay State Steamship Company steamer, S.S. Governor Cobb walked out on strike, demanding increased wages and shorter working hours.

The seamen struck a half-hour before the steamer was scheduled to leave Edison Wharf for Provincetown. A committee of the men went into immediate conference with officials of the steamship company.

For a time there was considerable confusion on the wharf. Officials finally announced cancellation of all sailings today, but said the steamer would be in service Sunday. Refunds were made.

Brice Lockwood, office manager for the company, stated:

"The steamer will positively be in operation Sunday. We will spend today arbitrating the demands, whatever they may be, and will settle the strike amicably."

Pope Praises U. S. Religious Freedom

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Aug. 14 (AP)—Pope Pius XI praised the United States for its religious freedom today and congratulated 200 young American students for living under the American flag.

The Pontiff beamed happily at the youthful Americans, students of Italian parochial schools in America who won trips to Italy as scholarship prizes. He spoke for 15 minutes on the church and church schools, referring to the United States as a country where all know the importance given to Christian schools . . . where these schools flower so dimlipply."

The Pontiff scouted reports that he was suffering from the extreme heat by engaging in a 45-minute spirited conversation with Pietro Cardinal Fumasoni-Biondi of the Congregation of the Propagation of the Faith.

Execute Hatchet Slayer

Sports Ball at Essex County Club Is Gay Event

By BETTY ALDEN

IF THE COSTUMES worn to the Sports Ball at Essex County Club last evening can be considered indicative, a number of North Shoreites have some pretty unusual hobbies . . . The affair was a large costume dance to benefit the North Shore Council of Boy Scouts, and everyone was told to wear a costume representing his favorite sport . . .

The sport, in most cases, proved to be guessing what the costumes represented . . . Of course, there were numbers of shorts and tennis and golf costumes, but the out-of-the-ordinary ones caused the most interest . . . One woman wore a Turkish costume, which might indicate that her favorite sport is indulging in the famous baths . . . The wearer of a Japanese costume (Cornelia Pentecost) evidently considers it quite a sport to play "Poor Butterfly" . . . and judging by the perfect lines of the nice print dress that Kitty Talbot wore, her idea of a favorite sport is modelling in a fashion show . . . and not skiing, as her friends would have supposed . . .

PATRICIA PRESTON

One man was in a full Scotch regalia, with plaid coat and tam o' shanter . . . the other guests scratched their heads to figure out what sport he represented . . . until the evening wore on and they remembered that the Scotch are very tight . . . Alice Burrage got more attention from all the masculine guests than any girl there . . . not because of her modish sea green silk jersey bathing suit, but because she was good enough sport to be the target in a modernized version of the old "hit him on the head and get a nickel cigar" game . . . She wasn't actually a target, but was perched on a collapsible shelf above a long tub of water . . . Husky North Shore athletes tried their skill at hitting a target with a baseball . . . As soon as the target was hit, the shelf collapsed and Alice was thoroughly dunked in the tub . . .

As soon as the masculine baseball experts began to find the range and Alice was having too many ups and downs, Summer Pingree, whose battered derby hat and checkered coat proclaimed him the barker, put up a great holler for more feminine pitchers . . . who, of course, proved to be anything but efficient at hitting the target . . .

German Waltzes Feature of Dance

THE MIDWAY, with this pitching game, tintype photographer, nail hammering contest and other games, had its many devotees, but the dance floor which was erected on the terrace behind the clubhouse, and bathed in a simulated moonlight, was the chief attraction . . . Practically everyone on the shore had a wonderful time dancing the German waltzes which Ruby Newman fiddled over and over again . . . A few of the many dancers were Bayard Tuckerman twirling Mrs. Christian Herter while Mr. Herter brightened one corner of the terrace with his colorful Bavarian peasant costume . . . Lindsay Dexter managed to dance very well in spite of the heavy Tyrolean knapsack he had slung over his shoulder . . . and Anne Ayer waltzed a few turns with Ben Beale until Paul Fox came along to cut in . . . all three were in sailing trousers with loosely fitting beer jackets . . .

To most everyone at the party it was a gay and hilarious evening, when business, politics and the stock market were set aside for the purpose of having fun . . . But to Patty Preston and Farley Wheelwright, whose engagement is being announced today, it was a perfect setting for the last evening before letting the world in on their secret . . .

Mrs. Sumner Pingree evidently has a yen to be a member of the fourth estate . . . for she was rigged out in a dress made of newspapers, with colored postage stamps for trimming, and and also forming bracelets on her arms . . . Mrs. Charles Francis Adams was an outdoor girl in shorts and scarlet halter . . . Mrs. Bayard Warren wore a black chiffon dress with sash, necklace and bracelets of poker chips . . . Mrs. John Blythe was another in colorful Chinese pajamas, maybe to indicate that her favorite sport is lounging around the tea table at home . . . Mrs. Frederic Winthrop proclaimed her enthusiasm as a tennis fan with her white tennis dress and visor cap, while Harry Fessenden was all dolled up in a scarlet shirt as he danced around with Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Jr. . . . Jean Carpenter was a nurse, Mrs. Hank Bowe, a sailorette, Catherine Pentecost represented a peasant of some sort in a printed dirndl, and others in the throng were Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. William Davis Sohier, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gannett, Harriet Cole, Priscilla Thorndike, J. Harleston Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Dow, George Lauriat, Mr. and Mrs. Tim Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Soule and Mr. and Mrs. Harcourt Amory . . .

Olga Monks Announces Wedding Plans

NOT ONE CEREMONY, but two . . . each steeped in all the ritual and tradition of the different religious backgrounds of the bride and bridegroom . . . will be performed to unite Olga Monks and Constantin Alexander Pertzoff in marriage . . . Olga's family background is typical of the famous old Boston conservative traditions . . . She is a great niece of Mrs. Jack Gardner, one of Boston's most well known social leaders, so it is most appropriate that her wedding ceremony should be performed in the Isabella Stewart Gardner chapel of Fenway Court . . . which is more commonly known to art lovers all over the country as Mrs. Jack Gardner's Palace . . . and which, as a museum packed with works of art, is one of our local prides . . .

In this building, which is a concrete heritage of the charitable purpose and love of art and culture of old Boston aristocracy, Olga's brother, Rev. G. Gardner Monks, headmaster of the Lenox School, will perform the Episcopal ceremony on Wednesday, September 1 . . .

Before this ceremony in the Gardner Palace, Olga and Mr. Pertzoff will go through the ancient marriage ritual of the Orthodox Russian church at the Church of the Holy Trinity in Boston . . . Rev. J. E. Gregorieff will perform the picturesque ceremony which is reminiscent of the romantic days of the Czar . . .

Niece to Be Only Attendant

OLGA WILL HAVE only one attendant . . . her niece, Ellen Endicott Monks, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. G. Gardner Monks, and she will be given in marriage by another brother, Dr. John Peabody Monks . . . Peter Alexander Pertzoff will attend his brother as best man and the ushers will be the Messrs. Vladimir Alexander Pertzoff of Montpelier, France, Thomas Bradford of Brookline, Robert Chandler of New York and Alexis Paul Arapoff of Cambridge . . .

The bride-to-be is a member of the Chilton Club, the Vincent Club and the Junior League, and a graduate of the Winsor School . . . Mr. Pertzoff is a graduate of the Harvard School of Architecture in 1924 . . .

Visiting European cities and towns should be a perfect honeymoon for Olga . . . she has always had a flair for colorful and unusual costumes . . . During the depression years when it was like pulling teeth to get people to attend costume parties in anything more than overalls or old clothes, Olga always arrived in an elaborate affair which won her the prize on many occasions . . .

The bridegroom has just been awarded the Arthur W. Wheelwright travelling fellowship in architecture, enabling him to take a year's wedding trip in Europe.

VINCENT Club Girl Enjoys Cohasset Show

Boston Evening American Photo

IT IS REFRESHING to see Leslie Blake in a casual sports costume like this, for she is seldom photographed in anything but the smoothest of fashions, or in the somewhat varied costumes of Vincent Club shows. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blake and enjoying a summer vacation in Cohasset, where the Blakes have a summer home.

Grace F. Hill Becomes Bride of Joseph Lynch

Governor Hurley and a host of state officials attended the wedding this morning of Joseph T. Lynch of Commonwealth avenue, secretary of the Appelate Tax Board, and Grace Frances Hill of West Newton.

The 10 o'clock ceremony, performed by the Rev. Charles D. Mc-Innis, professor at St. John's Seminary, took place in St. Bernard's Church, West Newton. Reception followed at the Philomathels Chalet.

The bride was gowned in white lace with a tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her uncle, Fred A. Cahill.

Mrs. Albert P. Leonard of Natick served her sister as matron of honor and bridesmaids included Mrs. Michael R. Burns of Nantasket, the bridegroom's sister, and Helen A. Delay of Charlestown, secretary to Governor Hurley. Also Margaret Kenneally of Salem and Phyllis Lindley of West Newton.

GOWNED IN WHITE

They were frocked alike in white mousseline de soie with matching fillet caps and shoulder-length veils. They carried Easter lilies and gladioli.

Best man's duties were performed by John J. Lynch of Hingham. Among the ushers were Joseph A. Konkowsky of Belmont, Daniel Farrell of Pittsfield, Edward G. Riley of Cambridge, Albert P. Leonard of Natick, Michael R. Burns, Jr., of Nantasket and Lieutenant John J. McArdle of the Boston police department.

Miss Hill is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hill and a popular member of the young club set.

Frances Mucci, Future Bride, Feted

A whirl of pre-nuptial parties preceding the marriage of Frances Mucci of Somerville and P. Joseph Martell of Everett which is slated for Sunday, September 5.

Next Saturday afternoon Mildred Martell, sister of the bridegroom-elect, will be hostess at a tea in the Copley Plaza Hotel for Miss Mucci.

Among the guests will be Sally Nareff of Beacon Hill, Rena Leonard of Medford, Barbara King of Malden, Gilda Cefalo of West Roxbury, and Theresa Mucci, sister of the bride-elect, who will serve as maid of honor at the wedding.

BECAUSE Queen Elizabeth of England hails from Scotland, plaids are all-important for fall. Costs flaunt plaids in the new loose-back, fitted front style. Topcoat suits combine them with matching solid colors for travel or school wear. Silk dresses, too, are cleverly used with dark colors and unusual trims. Lingerie, children's frocks and coats are all featuring them in multi-color versions.

* * *

IF YOU plan to be smart this fall, your silhouette must be slim, and your bodice draped. Skirts have swung away from the swishing folds of princess flares to straight lines. Fullness in the center front is introduced by clever draping, or controlled by shirring to keep the hipline slim and graceful. A gentle flare is the maximum.

Fabrics are more neat than in past seasons. Surface interest remains "tops," but now it's done conservatively. The ribbed family, in silks, is especially good for fall.

* * *

BLACK is expected to lead the field in fall fashions. Dead black will be supplemented a little later in the season by touches of color. Windsor blue, selected by the Duchess of Windsor for her trousseau, is expected to be popular, and will be followed by "half-tones" colors slightly muted from their true shades. Later in the season, the "football" colors, purple reds, bright greens and brilliant members of the sinnia or rust family will be shown. Green is expected to range second in interest for fall, with the "bluey" shades such as evergreen leading out the yellow-greens.

Of particular interest to fashion-minded women will be the word that wools are now printed. A California company has introduced a new hand-blocked wool.

* * *

Club Members At Shore Resorts

Members of the young club set are spending the week-end at various summer playgrounds. Miriam Regan is at the fashionable Soo-Nipi-Lodge in Sunapee, New Hampshire.

Florence O'Connor, who has been visiting in Duxbury, is motoring down to Hillside Lodge in Falmouth for a fortnight's stay.

The South Shore is headquarters for Mary Granahan, Mary Shea, Marie Carroll, Anna Murphy, Margaret O'Connor, Esther Giles, Sally O'Connell and Mary and Bertha McGinty.

Among the club members sojourning on the North Shore are Clare Roach, who is spending the summer with her family in Nahant. Molly McAuley is at Annisquam and Mary and Agnes Doyle are vacationing at Birch Island in Casco Bay, Maine.

ENGAGED

Patricia Preston To Wed Farley Wheelwright

MRS. HAROLD G. CUTLER of Beacon street and Seven Pines, in Hamilton, is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Miss Patricia W. Preston, to Farley Wilder Wheelwright, son of Mrs. Wilder Wheelwright of Newbury street, and William Bond Wheelwright of Chicago.

Miss Preston, who made her debut at a lavish ball at The Country Club in Brookline on the evening before the Harvard-Yale game in 1935, attended the May School, and is a graduate of Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Ct.

Mr. Wheelwright prepared for college at Phillips Exeter Academy and attended the Sorbonne in Paris.

Debs Shown In Portraits

A number of Boston debs and post debutantes are hanging cheek-by-jowl with a group of famous men at the Oceanside gallery, not in the flesh, but in charcoal, pastel, oil or whatever medium artist Patricia Marshall Tate thought was best suited to them.

Among those whose pictures are in Miss Tate's exhibit of portraits are Mary Porter Wardwell, Lois Tanner Green, Mrs. Richard Dow, (Betty Sagendorph), Betty Albers, Caroline Ovesson and Frances Lowell.

Balancing all this feminine pulchritude are the sterner faces of L. Francis Herreshoff, famous yacht designer, R. Devereux Barker, vice-commodore of the Eastern Yacht Club, Nicholas Roosevelt, Christian Herter, Henry Parkman, Jr., Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., and Lord Wright of Durley, Lord of Appeal in Ordinary to the Supreme Court of England.

Indian Influence In Fall Fashions

THE INDIAN potentates who gathered last May in London for the coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth have left a definite imprint on the fashions of tomorrow. Twisted turbans, intricate draping, and center fullness will all be on display Autumn and evening frocks for fall. In Indian fashion also, fabrics for fall are magnificent in their richness. Many are brocaded, printed or shot with gold and silver in unique patterns.

To Miss West's current picture "Merry Widow" goes the credit for a second definite fall trend. The long dinner suit, snug fitting from top to toe, and the same picture hat are fall "musts" for every fashion-minded woman. The same period has had an influence in lowering the waistline in blouses with a corselet bodice for both daytime and evening.

BECAUSE Queen Elizabeth of England hails from Scotland, plaids are all-important for fall. Coats flaunt plaids in the new loose-back, fitted front style. Topcoat suits combine them with matching solid colors for travel or school wear. Silk dresses, too, are cleverly used with dark colors and unusual trims. Lingerie, children's frocks and coats are all featuring them in multi-color versions.

* * *

IF YOU plan to be smart this fall, your silhouette must be slim, and your bodice draped. Skirts have swung away from the swishing folds of princess flares to straight lines. Fullness in the center front is introduced by clever draping, or controlled by shirring to keep the hipline slim and graceful. A gentle flare is the maximum.

Fabrics are more neat than in past seasons. Surface interest remains "tops," but now it's done conservatively. The ribbed family, in silks, is especially good for fall.

* * *

BLACK is expected to lead the field in fall fashions. Dead black will be supplemented a little later in the season by touches of color. Windsor blue, selected by the Duchess of Windsor for her trousseau, is expected to be popular, and will be followed by "half-tones" colors slightly muted from their true shades. Later in the season, the "football" colors, purple reds, bright greens and brilliant members of the sinnia or rust family will be shown. Green is expected to range second in interest for fall, with the "bluey" shades such as evergreen leading out the yellow-greens.

Of particular interest to fashion-minded women will be the word that wools are now printed. A California company has introduced a new hand-blocked wool.

* * *

COCKTAIL jackets and skirts continue to be of importance to the wardrobe, with blouses going in for richer effects in the new fabrics. Many of the new cocktail jackets show a return to the V-neckline.

Friends' Marriages Fail, So Boy Refuses To Wed Girl He Loves

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The man who first said, "Any excuse is better than none," must have been thinking of the fellows who court girls, but seldom marry them.

The innumerable stories they make up to escape matrimony would outrival the inventive genius of an Edison. No tale is too impossible for them to tell as long as there is the slightest possibility of the girl friend's believing it.

Personally, I think I've heard a million excuses in the years that I have been writing this column. A typical and interesting one is this, which a Winthrop girl writes.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The only excuse he gives me, after coming to see me nearly every evening for six months, is that he has seen too many unhappy marriages, and fears to add to the number of them.

He makes $25 per week, which is fair money around here, and we could live very comfortably on that.

It isn't that I want to marry right away, but I don't like to continue going with a boy I love as much as I love this one and have him talk that way about marriage.

If a man really loves a girl, it seems to me he'd want to marry her some time, instead of saying the world has too many unfortunate marriages already.

JOYCE.

MY DEAR JOYCE:

If the young man were really in love, he wouldn't harbor these doubts. In my opinion, there is only an indication of the uncertainty of his affections.

I have little use for the boy who wastes a girl's time. Nor can I excuse him for going to see her every evening when he hasn't the remotest intention of popping the question.

Of course, my child, the decision is up to you. You must determine whether you wish to continue in this chilly courtship or seek the companionship of one less terrified by the number of mismated couples he sees about him.

But, whatever you do, remember that the years pass more quickly for women than they do for men. Spinsterhood comes rapidly upon us, and too many wake up at an age when marriage is practically out of the question.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

After a man has been introduced to a lady in the lady's home, should the man, when leaving, say that he is glad to have met her?

Or should he disregard the introduction unless the lady speaks first?

CLAIRE.

DEAR CLAIRE:

Yes, the man, in this circumstance, would indeed graciously express his pleasure in the introduction and for the hospitality.

He might say, for instance, "It has been a great pleasure to meet you, Mrs. Allen, and you were very kind to let me come to your home with Miss Jones. Thank you very much."

Married Comrades

MOTHER GRAHAM'S LESSON DELAYED

CHAPTER 380

MOTHER GRAHAM gave Lillian no chance to hedge upon the offer to show her how the afghan she was finishing for Mary was made.

And while I fought with my risibles to suppress a laugh at Lillian's discomfiture, caused by her misplaced enthusiasm, the elder woman struck into an illustrated explanation of her needlework.

Putting down upon the nearest chair the afghan and the daisies she had just gathered up, she took from a small box a little wire wheel with projecting spikes all around it.

"Look," she said, holding it in one hand and winding wool upon it with the other from a ball in another box, "you just wind the wool this way around each spoke, until the wheel is full—so many times for each. Then you fasten it—this way, unclick your wheel and—presto! the completed daisy slips out."

She held up the completed daisy with a pardonable air of triumph, and Lillian enthusiastically murmured, "Wonderful!"

"Wonderful, nothing!" my mother-in-law retorted. "As I said before, the daisies are the easy part to do. It's the crocheting them together that's the real work. Here! you try one and see how easy it is!"

"I'm afraid I'll only disgrace myself," Lillian protested weakly. "It's such a dub as anything like this." I came to her rescue.

NAP PROVIDES ESCAPE

"Mother dear, I'm going to beg off, just lessen until another time," I said. "Lillian hasn't had any sleep yet, and I'm planning to take her up and put her to bed right away. I'm sure she'd only make a mess of those daisies now, she's so tired."

My mother-in-law dropped the little wheel into the box, and spoke quickly, contritely.

"Of course! I am so stupid! I had forgotten! She must be tired to death! Take her upstairs at once. But, mind you, don't you begin to visit, you two. You know what you are when you get started."

Her tone was that of a mother addressing two small girls sent upstairs to take their afternoon nap. But it was also charged with the kindly concern which I knew was hers over Lillian, and my answer was docile enough to suit the strictest matriarch.

"I won't talk nor let her talk until after she wakes," I said. "But can't we help you take those things upstairs?"

"When I need help to carry anything as light as that upstairs, I'll go into an old ladies' home and stay there," she retorted, and waited us up the stairs ahead of her. As we went into our room, we saw her rounding the last step of the staircase, and I closed the door with the certainty that in another two minutes she would be settled upon the balcony outside her room which she enjoys so much in pleasant weather.

I locked the door of my room behind us, and put my finger on my lips as Lillian opened hers.

"I'm not going to let you talk—much," I told her, "but if you have anything to say that must be uttered, talk in whispers as I am doing. She's a bit deaf, but her perceptions are very keen, and she's perfectly capable of coming over and seeing for herself whether or not we are obeying her orders."

"I know it," Lillian returned in the same muted tones I was using. "What a woman she is! What an indomitable spirit. Do you know I had a lump in my throat when she was talking so valiantly about completing those afghans?"

"Its mate was in mine," I answered. "She is so plucky—and so optimistic!"

A VITAL QUESTION

"God grant she sees all her ambitions fulfilled!" Lillian said, and my amen was no less fervent than her prayer. Then I moved toward her and put a compelling hand upon her shoulder.

"Won't you tumble into bed now?" I asked. "We can visit all day, when you awaken."

"Presently, presently," she returned, still in a whisper, but betraying impatience. And then we fell silent, while I stood waiting, knowing full well the problem that was engrossing her to the exclusion of all others.

It was a long while before she spoke. And at first her only word was my name, spoken in a compelling whisper:

"Madge!"

"Yes, dear," I whispered back.

"Tell me," she was tense now, and I thrilled to her evident excitement. "Do you think there's any hope at all that spell of hers about Marion having a hope chest?"

CROCHETED MEDALLION PATTERN 1546

SIX-POINTED stars, that suggest pinwheels, joined point-to-point, result in so exquisite a spread that every beholder will praise its laciness.

When you memorize the one medallion you'll be amazed that so rich a design can be so simple to crochet. Use the 9-inch "stars" singly as doilies, or join them for spread, cloth or scarf.

Pattern 1546 contains detailed directions for making the medallion shown and joining it for a variety of articles; illustrations of it and of all stitches used; material requirements; a photograph of the medallion.

Bridge

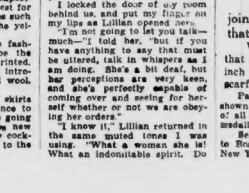
The Only Chance

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The wise declarer puts himself in the place of the defenders in order to understand their plays.

In the hand below South found it necessary to play for the only possible distribution of the cards which would permit him to sidestep the trap East and West had prepared for him.

South, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♢	Pass	1♠	2♢
2♡	Pass	3♡	3♠
4♢	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the Ace of clubs and continued with a low club. This type of lead is generally undesirable except when the intention is to ruff the third round of the suit. South, therefore, had no trouble in realizing that West had led a doubleton club.

South dared not draw trumps at once for East would win with the Ace, give his partner a club ruff and then take a diamond for the setting trick.

Any other plan seemed a little hopeless, since the play of the club suit had marked East with an original holding of four clubs, and since the bidding had practically marked East with a six-card diamond suit. But South saw a way to make the contract if East's three remaining cards were the singleton Ace of hearts and two low spades.

At trick three he cashed the Ace of spades and continued the suit. On the third high spade East ruffed with the Ace, and South hastily discarded his losing diamond. East gave his partner a club ruff to be sure, but could not secure a diamond trick, and the contract was therefore fulfilled.

Household Hints

THE WHITE part of orange and lemon rinds is usually bitter, so in grating use only the outside yellow part.

IF the midribs of an outer stalk of celery feel springy and open when pressed with the thumb, the celery may be pithy.

LEFTOVER fruit juices, especially those from spiced fruits, make excellent basting liquid for roasts, chops and ham dishes.

GRASS stains may be removed from most white summer clothing by using soap and cold water, or alcohol.

ALCOHOL stains on polished furniture may be removed by rubbing olive oil over the spot as soon as the alcohol is wiped off.

FOR BETTER light—don't forget to wash the dust off electric light bulbs and fixtures once in a while.

VEGETABLES will retain more of their flavor if put on to cook in water that has already been brought to the boiling point. Otherwise much of the flavor will soak into the water.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

EASY-GOING INDIVIDUALS GAIN WEIGHT

By IDA JEAN KAIN

WEIGHT is largely a matter of taste and temperament. Your taste in food is the first consideration, for a tendency toward overweight presupposes a preference for the high-calorie foods.

Temperament, however, helps to determine whether you spend the calories as energy, or store them as fat.

The easy-going individual is apt to be a weight-gainer. Temperament goes deeper than you may imagine, and placid individuals usually have a highly efficient mechanism which turns every last calorie into adipose tissue.

Difference in temperament accounts for the thin person who can eat an amazing amount of the fattening foods without gaining an ounce. Food seems to have no bearing on the weight of this type. The truth is that this person is apt to be equipped with a highly active intestinal tract which hurries the food along before it can be completely absorbed. These nervous people do not get all the "good" out of their three square meals.

Another reason the thin person is thin is that she is always in a rush. When you consider that fast movements burn up the calories just three times as fast as slow movements—to say nothing of the calories wasted by the nervous person in fretting—it is not difficult to see why some people are naturally fat and others thin.

The underweigh who is always ahead of time and the overweight who is always behind time can learn a great deal from each other about the control of weight.

* * *

Far be it from me, however, to want to change the temperament of the good-natured fat person. An even disposition enables you to get more fun out of life than the nervous person who flies off the handle at the slightest provocation.

You are to be envied for your nicely cushioned nerves, and as long as you do not exceed normal weight by more than 10 to 15 per cent, there is no danger to your health. Anything more than that should concern you to the point of doing something about it.

* * *

Taste in food is the thing for the overweight to change. You can learn to like the foods which furnish fewer calories for you to store. If you continue to take high-calorie foods, your thrifty system will supply you with a steadily increasing surplus and overweight.

The nervous individual should try to change her temperament by taking life a bit easier. Slow down and rest to decrease your energy output. It is the only way to put fat on your bones. You can

Up She Goes!

There's nothing grander to set off the new boxy lines of tweeds and fur coats...the kind that swing down from brave, squared shoulders. And they're straight from the hands of the two most intriguing modistes in Paris—Agnes and the house of Blanche & Simone. These houses designed the hats especially for the great American milliner, G. Howard Hodge.

Now you may have them with the best of American workmanship and fabric and color!

Beauty Tip

Like freckles, they are due to a change in the pigment of the skin. The liver has nothing to do with them.

Skin peeling will remove them —and the complexion, too. Such drastic measures should be taken only by a medical man who understands the beautifying job.

Some spots are transients—here in the summer season, gone when the snow flies.

Applesauce Cake

HERE'S FAVORITE RECIPE

By MARTHA LEE

A REQUEST for Applesauce Cake sent us into our collection of apple sauce recipes.

We found the cake asked for and something else that delighted us — Apple Butter Pie. Did you ever hear of it?

Well, we had almost forgotten about it, but we feel certain that it will be welcomed. So all you applesauce enthusiasts rally round.

APPLESAUCE SPICE CAKE

1-3 cup shortening
1 cup granulated sugar
2-3 cup seedless raisins
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon mace
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup thick apple sauce
1-3 to ½ cup chopped nut meats, if desired

Cream shortening, then add sugar gradually, beating well. Sift a little flour over raisins and add to creamed mixture. Mix remaining flour with salt, soda and spice, and sift together. Blend with creamed mixture.

This mixture may be prepared in advance, if desired, and stored in the refrigerator. When ready for baking, break up mixture. Beat egg slightly and add to cup of thick applesauce. Then add to cake mixture and beat into the batter. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake in moderate oven (350 F.) 40 to 50 minutes. Add nuts last if used.

APPLE BUTTER PIE

½ cup brown sugar
2 egg yolks
½ cup apple butter
½ cup milk
1 cup water
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 tablespoon gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
2 tablespoons granulated sugar

Cook brown sugar, egg yolks, apple butter, milk, one cup water, salt and spices until mixture thickens. Soak gelatin in one-half cup cold water five minutes, and add to the hot mixture.

Let cool and when it begins to congeal, fold in egg whites which have been beaten with the two tablespoons sugar. Pour into a baked pie shell, chill and serve with whipped cream, unsweetened, flavored with vanilla.

* * *

A LADY from South Weymouth has sent in her original recipe for Ginger Snap Cakes, which she would like to have printed for the benefit of others.

We think that is a fine generous spirit. She states that it has never failed for her or those to whom it has been given.

GINGER SNAP CAKES

½ cup molasses
½ cup sugar
½ cup sour milk
1 tablespoon shortening
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda

Cream shortening and add sugar gradually. Beat soda and sour milk together with egg beater, then add to creamed mixture. Add molasses gradually, beating after each addition. Sift together dry ingredients and add to above mixture. Bake for 20 to 30 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees F.)

DATE DAINTIES

Two eggs, three-fourth cup powdered sugar, three tablespoons flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one cup chopped walnuts, one cup pitted and chopped dates, one teaspoon vanilla, few drops orange flavoring.

Beat eggs until they are light. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder together, mix with the sugar and stir into the eggs. Add the dates, nuts and flavorings. Spread in a shallow buttered pan about eight by ten inches. Bake in a moderate oven at 350 degrees, for about twenty-five minutes. Cut in strips and cool before serving.

STREAMLINED 'DIETRICHS'

Even veteran news cameramen, who have been taking pictures of bathing beach beauties for years, are amazed at the hundreds and hundreds of "Legs Like Dietrich's" which are coming to light, as their charming owners compete in the contest sponsored by the Boston Evening American and the Keith Memorial Theater. Winners will be announced Monday. Among the many entrants under consideration are those pictured here: Anne Prince of Wentworth terrace, Dorchester; Luella Thomas of Riverway, Back Bay; Teresa Grantano of Maxwell street, Taunton, and Hazel Pickford of Ocean street, Lynn.

HAZEL PICKFORD

'Legs' Contest Awards Monday

You're not half as hot and bothered, waiting to know if you've won a prize, as are the Boston Evening American-Keith Memorial Theater judges, who are spending this week end trying to choose between your pictures.

Monday's Boston Evening American will break the news. You'll know then who gets $25 for legs most like those of Marlene Dietrich.

OTHER PRIZES, TOO

You'll know, too, who gets second prize of $10 and the three consolation prizes of $5 each.

Pictures too small or not sharp enough for newspaper reproduction are nevertheless being considered on their merits—or more properly on the merits of the legs they portray.

If you want to be convinced, see Marlene Dietrich in her newest starring vehicle, United Artists' "Knight Without Armor," now showing at the Keith Memorial Theater.

PLENTY OF OTHERS

There really are legs like Dietrich's—maybe prettier than Dietrich's—in scores and scores of New England communities.

And, honest, girls, it seems to the contest judges that pictures of every pair of those legs are piled up in the editorial offices of the Boston Evening American, waiting for inspection and comparison.

Judges are Ann Masters, columnist, who knows Hollywood; C. G. Gates, of Roberts Theatrical Studio; Michael Kavanaugh, of United Artists Corp., and George E. French, manager of the Keith Memorial Theater.

CHAPTER 18

"I do not." Color flooded her face. Had his affrontery no limit?

"Gosh, you look lovely when you're mad. And I like your new blond hair. Your jaunt has improved you, Toni."

"A penny for your thoughts."

"Oh, come, now. I know I acted in a beastly fashion, but I'd been nagged to death about our engagement, for you know my dad has been pretty badly pinched financially, though not as badly as your father. Still and all, I was fond of you, old girl."

"You certainly had a charming way of showing it."

"You don't think I wanted to marry Jessica, do you?"—in an injured tone. "And you can surely understand how I couldn't face you, Toni, to tell you I had to marry her because of our mutual changed finances. You and I couldn't live on sentiment, could we?"

"You mean you were too cowardly to face me? To tell me that money meant so much more to you than"—her lip curled—"what you call love?"

"Don't rub it in, old girl, I'm not as bad as you imagine. You'll understand when I tell you I considered it the correct thing to marry Jessica."

"What on earth do you mean?" Brock said in his most agreeable manner to Niklas, who was bowing so suavely. "I was just saying that I would like to join the club. May I tender my subscription?"

Niklas naturally complied. Toni was thankful that he was immediately called away.

But it was disturbing to know that Brock was going to be a member of the club.

What was his motive—she wondered.

She was soon to know.

He leaned over the table toward her, and said ingratiatingly:

"I'm hoping, Toni, that you're going to let bygones be bygones, that we're going to be good friends. And why not? Aren't we more or less up against it—in the same boat? Believe it or not—and I admit I've been a cad—I've a mighty soft spot in my heart for you, and I always shall. Don't you think we'd be a good team?"

A good team? Was this a renewed marriage offer?—she wondered. A sick feeling swept over her—part of the old pain, and a kind of nausea at his effrontery.

She stared at him silently.

"Ladies must live, you know," he said lightly, "and so must unlucky chaps like me who find themselves minus the fare[ful]. I was let out of the firm in San Francisco, you see. Jessica's done the fading-out act. My father's lost his money. Here I am. What are we going to do about it?"

"You mean," said Toni with dry lips, "that gentlemen must live—in the style they've been accustomed to?"

A bold look came into his brown flecked eyes.

"A bit crude aren't you? You wouldn't have said a thing like that three months ago, even though there was some truth to it. Toni, you've—well, hardened."

A BRAZEN CAD

She said swiftly, vehemently:

"Thank heaven for that!"

He bit his lip, for the moment nonplused.

Then: "I'm afraid I'm responsible for the change. Am I, Toni? Egad! If I'd known how things would turn out—the mess they'd be—wild horses wouldn't have dragged me to the altar with that woman."

"Let's leave her name out of this, please."

"I can see where you don't like to hear of it, naturally, Toni, admits she made a play for me?"

His cuddleness was so apparent that the old pain seemed to slip forever from her at that moment. It was as though she were talking with a stranger.

"What with my people's nagging, as I said before, and—"

She lifted a hand to silence him.

"Oh, I know I'm no good, but if you know what I've gone through, you'd forgive me."

A pause.

He changed his tack.

"You're in a far better position than I am, Toni. You've bluffed them beautifully."

"How so?" But she knew what was coming.

"That clever tarradiddle about being a French aristocrat. The marquise line! The whole town's talking about the mysterious beauty. I dropped in at my club to lunch with a friend and he put me wise."

"And did you put him wise, too?"

"You think I'd cut off my nose to spite my face? That would be a fool stunt, old girl."

Before she could put two and two together, he continued:

"There isn't any reason, is there, why I shouldn't get a cut-in?"

"On what?"

Blackmail?—she wondered. His silence at a price?

"Don't look so thunderstruck, Toni. I'm not putting any screws on you, if that's what you're thinking! I haven't fallen as low as that!

"But as I've said, we men must live. You're doing very well for yourself. And you're meeting the right people. That's where I come in, if you don't mind. I know hardly anybody of importance in New York.

"Hardly any moneyed, influential people. In my present financial position, I need to get in with the right crowd."

She snapped: "So as to make another rich marriage?"

He took that humbly, rebukingly.

"Toni, you've grown so hard! I wouldn't know you for the same girl!"

"I'm not the same girl, Brock. Get that straight."

"And you're lovelier than ever. You're making money. You're successful. I can't but admire you for your cleverness, even though you are cruel."

"You are worse than cruel, Brock. You'd like to have me on the end of a pin, like a broken butterfly. But I am out of your collection. I have flown. Everything is finished."

"But not friendship?" he ventured.

His gaze traveled over her clothes, her face, her blond hair. He said, very softly, but an unpleasant inanimation lay behind the words:

"You wouldn't want us to be friendly, Toni? Co-operation. That's the idea."

And because he knew so much, she knew she had to yield to some kind of truce between them.

She hated it!

BROCK'S DEMAND

"To introduce me to people who can help me find a job. That Halsted-Flagg fellow has barrels of money and influence. I saw him mooning over you last night. You're smart! At the same time, if you'd hold it, I should like to meet Miss Harriet Brewster. You know her, too."

Up and down! Up and down indeed, wherever the gay world assembled—Miss Harriet Brewster's parties were famed. For their dash. Their "difference." The excellence of the food and drink.

Nor were people indiscriminately bidden to these gatherings. In one way or another, almost all her guests were celebrated.

Society. The stage. The screen. The international set. Above all, visiting titles. The smart polo crowd.

Invitations, then, were eagerly besought by all the climbers to Miss Brewster's home. She circumvented them all.

Shampoo Way to New Hair Beauty

WHY NOT make your own shampoo? If you have got in the habit of being shampooed at your beauty parlor—why not keep your own shampoo there? It's certainly being done. The extra expense and labor will be a beneficial investment.

This summer, if possible, dry the hair in the open air and give it a sun bath. Occasionally bend the head over between the knees, allowing the blood to be forced to the roots, and while in this position give a firm friction to the hair with the tips of the fingers. This massage not only brings activity to the scalp muscles, but it is also stimulating to the eyes and ears.

I have some very fine shampoos for blonde hair that will keep the hair light—one a real reconditioning Hollywood Egg Shampoo. If hair is dry or has been too friendly with the peroxide bottle, this shampoo is just the thing.

A Tar-Oil Shampoo is my pet for brunettes. This is a real medicated shampoo, which may be used about once a month.

These recipes, together with some hair rinse formulas will be mailed to you if you write in to me.

Also let me know if you would like the name of a snapless oil shampoo, sold at an exclusive Fremont street store for 50 cents. This bottle will give you several shampoos that will insure absolute cleanliness and make your hair glow with high lights.

You will be proud to carry it to your hairdresser if you do not shampoo at home. For any request kindly send in a stamped-addressed envelope or telephone Liberty 4000.

Aboard S. S. Steel Pier—Well, folks, here we are homeward bound, tired but happy, after our third annual cruise to Provincetown. And until bigger and better cruises come along this one will stand in the record as the best.

Friday, 13th may be a "jinx day" to those who have superstitions but it provided our cruise with the smoothest sea through which the Steel Pier has swept in weeks, a clear, bright sun that beamed constantly and a breeze that made us all forget the sweltering heat of the city.

There are nearly a thousand of us on board, including Junior Birdmen and their relatives and friends, taking advantage of the special fare reduction offered to members of the organization.

Once the steamer was underway we all began to enjoy ourselves in countless ways. Some lolled about the decks, some danced, some played deck games and others just sat around and "renewed the rags."

Groups of Birdmen who were on the trip included 27 members of the Flying Hawks squadron of John Winthrop and Miss Esther E. Larson, their sponsor, and 19 members of the English class of Harvard summer school. The latter were celebrating the end of the term.

Gordon White, Woburn Birdman, won the first prize in the ship's amateur show. He sang two songs, "In the Days of Indigestion" and "Mad Carew." His prize was tickets for another Provincetown cruise.

The features of the trip included a special luncheon for the new aces. These included Jack Golden, Maurice Saidel, 1937 wing outdoor champ; Melvin Wittenberg, Syd Wallerstein, Harold Crane, Stephen Sardella and Warren Avola.

Another highlight was the two-hour stay at the quaint and historic town of Provincetown. There was a race up the pier as usual to rent bicycles and some of the boys even had to use girls' bikes.

Others walked or boarded sight-seeing buses. One Birdman did a good job of hiking because when he returned to ship he exclaimed:

"Gosh, my puppies are singing a war song!"

John Jacobs: "Jack Bronski, my cousin, cut in on me for a dance but outside of this tragedy the cruise was the greatest one we've had."

Dave Adelstone: "The cruise was wonderful but how else could it be when a swell bunch of boys and girls like the Junior Birdmen get together."

Melvin Wittenberg: "I got seasick and then had a headache. Later on I rode a bike that had no brakes and this gave me a pain in the neck. But outside of this I had one peach of a time."

Art Sampson: "I was nicknamed Romeo because I dance so good. But I can ride a bicycle, too. I never had a better time on a Junior Birdmen cruise."

Jack Golden: "After eating five sandwiches and then the banquet provided for the aces, I began to realize the possibilities of the starboard rail. It was too nice a day to be sick, however, so I decided to enjoy the cruise, which I did with no feeling of hunger."

The Junior Birdmen quartette, Bill Maze, Harvey Mashatt, John Morelia and I. Goldman, declared in unison:

"The salt air made our voices a little flat but we had a great time."

George Abagis: "The Leaping Lenas had one great time. Every squadron should make the trip next year."

Frank Barrett: "This makes my third cruise. I'm glad I came as usual and will be on hand again next year."

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

MOST recent of the newsy morsels in hand is that Harry Conn, well known but not so well known as the radio comedians he has written comedy to fit, has tied up with broadcasting in rather a big way.

Harry has landed a place with one of the better program planning agencies in New York and will write broadcasts as well as do the picking of the personalities to be featured.

"N. F. T."

This is decidedly a new departure among the big time networkers, but perhaps a good move. So many "mike" people appear to be handling things for which they do not seem any too well suited. Conn has authored air antics for the best of them, namely Jack Benny, Burns and Allen, Joe Penner and Walter O'Keefe. He will also be credited with the creations and best of all get as much and often more than many of the funsters.

FLEETING FLASHES

Forsaking the old "hayloft" at the Eighth Street Theater in Chicago for a specially constructed platform inside the racetrack at the Illinois State Fair Grounds, the entire cast of the "National Barn Dance" hour, numbering almost 100 persons, will move to Springfield, Ill., for their 9 o'clock (WBZ) broadcast tonight.

It will be the third annual appearance of the cast at the Fair.

ANDRE KOSTELANETZ, who previously directed music for Lily Pons' motion picture successes, "I Dream Too Much" and "That Girl From Paris," has been signed to conduct the music for the coloratura star's new RKO film vehicle, "It Never Happened Before."

PHIL SPITALNY and his all-girl "Hour of Charm" orchestra have broken the box-office record at New York's Paramount Theater, topping any figure set for the 11 years of the theater's existence, with a total attendance of more than 160,000 during the first week of their engagement.

JESSICA DRAGONETTE'S beauty and artistry inspired a new wallpaper design that was created under the sponsorship of the Wallpaper Institute of America for use in her home.

In the few days that the newly designed paper has been on exhibition at the Institute's annual display in the Waldorf-Astoria, numerous requests have been received from music-lovers who would like to purchase this special print for the music-rooms of their own homes.

An expression of gratitude for radioland's recent Shakespeare Cycle was made this week by Major Edward Bowes, not in his capacity as master of ceremonies of the famous CBS Amateur Hour, but as vice-president of the Shakespeare Association and a noted authority on the bard's works.

* * *

The corking combination called The Bachelor—Tony, George, Oscar and Gus—the Colonial Network's novelty male quartet, have been singing together since they were youngsters. The advantage of fifteen years of teamwork in vaudeville is theirs, as well as before the "mike," and is attested in the remarkable blending of their voices.

They are heard every Tuesday and Thursday morning (WAAB), from 10:30 to 10:45.

Tony Dooley (second tenor) is the managerial spokesman as well as guitarist of the group.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Every once in a while there comes up something to give the crawls to living flesh and a wonder if the race doesn't need a periodical and exhaustive weeding . . . Like an incident of a few days ago, when a Hub woman worker sat behind two maids on a train to Lynn . . . Not that the lady was intentionally eavesdropping, but she couldn't help overhear the chatter of the pair . . .

From one girl came a complaint that she couldn't get out early nites and keep dates, because the kid in the house where she stayed was a daylite-saving rebel and wouldn't go to sleep . . . Well, the other one had the answer to that, but when she gave it, Maid No. 1 herself recoiled and down the spine of the woman in back there rippled like a parade of ice cubes . . .

There was only one thing to do, she figured, if a life was to be saved, and she rode one station past her own . . . There the maid of the shocking suggestion got off and the woman followed her until she went into a house . . . Then the visitor rang the bell and contacted the mistress . . . When told of the conversation, the latter almost drooped . . .

"Why," she gasped, "we've been taking the baby to the doctor every day to see what the matter was but he's never been able to find out. I'll discharge that girl right away."

What the moron-minded maid had said to her charm was:

"Why don't you do what I do? Every night I take the baby down to the kitchen and give him a few whiffs of gas from the gas stove. Then he's all set for the night and I get out early."

TRYING PAN LEAs

Over in the State Prison in Charlestown, one convict thing an important grind thinks the sun's shining for him—but what he doesn't know is that even if he wins what he's long fought for, he loses . . .

The lad, relative of a state office holder, was originally in on a 12-to-20-yr. rap . . . He was paroled but was picked up again for an important robbery, returned for violation of parole and given, in addition, another 8-to-20 yr. stretch . . . Well, he and the relative have been working since to get him paroled and now the latter learns another long-termer has signed a confession that he, authorities and record robbery and committed it . . .

A new trial will be asked but what the convict and his relatives don't know yet is that even if he's freed out of State's force—there's an important Calif. warrant waiting to be served . . .

PAPA KNOWS BEST

The brat at summer camp had written home that his pants had been spanked by a counsellor, and Mama got pretty wrought up over it . . .

"But you agreed to it," reminded Pa. "It said right in the rules that kids could be punished for infractions by spanking."

"I don't care," she stormed. "Get out the car. We're driving on there. My poor, poor boy."

"It's a shame," she jawed at she head counsellor when they arrived at camp. "Poor Charles is delicate. We never hit him at home."

"Only in self-defense," said Daddy, dryly, ruining the act.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Wellaston's Bradford Ropes (the ex-song-and-dance man) doing the film script of "All hands on Deck" for Republic Pix . . . He authored the novel "42nd St." from which that swell pic was made . . . Evidence that Johnny Fitz (Sweet Adeline) hasn't lost his Democratic trend came yestiddy when he was sighted Beacon-st riding with the chauffeur in a N Y Rolls on Rox Crossing's Police Capt. Tom Casey deluging police hdqrs. pressroom boys with postcards while vacationing . . . Yet he never asks a favor or publicity, and never visits . . .

Wasn't it six weeks ago that Chairman Dave Lasker of the Fin Com barked at a witness and Gen. E. Farnum, the commission's special atty, to quit sparring? . . . "I don't want to stay here all summer," said Lasker, as the Codman Hill hearing tooled on . . . Dennis Kerrigan, pensioned Hub police sarge, the was tagged "King of Hampden St." when he patroled that Roxbury dist.) sighted strolling in P. O. Sq. a fat cigar in his lips . . . He looks XV yrs. under his age . . .

Another Top Role Given Ginger

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Aug. 14—Apparently RKO's deal with Margaret Sullavan failed to materialize for the studio has just announced that Ginger Rogers is definitely set for the femme lead in "Having Wonderful Time."

However, negotiations are still on to secure Henry Fonda, Maggie's ex-hubby, for the top male spot. Milton Berle will play the recreation director at Kamp Kaxrefine, where "Having Wonderful Time" will follow Vivacious Lady" which goes into production a s Ginger returns from her Canadian vacation. James Stewart, now recovered from his illness, will be able to play the male lead as originally planned, and Fay Bainter and James Ellison are also set. Third on the schedule is Ginger in the next Astaire-Rogers dansical—their first in Technicolor.

Chatter in Hollywood: Our fair village continues to buzz with the report that the Simone Simon-Gene Markey romance is getting serioussser and serioussser. (Don't mind me—I just re-read "Alice in Wonderland.") Gene maintains firmly that his association with the little Simone is based solely on the fact that he is producing several of her pictures at Twent-Cent-Fox. However, I happen to know that Simone received phone calls and cables from him while aboard ship on her way back from France, and that she is wearing a gold ring which he gave her. Soo-o! Well, so what?

Best evidence of the personal hit scored by Richard Arlen in Paramount's recently released "Artists and Models" is the new three-picture Brothers have offered him the lead opposite Kay Francis in "Regina from Limbo." Dick has just finished "Park Avenue Dame" for Columbia and is available for loan out, so nothing stands in the way of the deal.

Warners previously sought Cary Grant for the role, which is said to be a swell one. However, Cary turned it down in favor of a much-needed vacation and will take a few weeks' rest before starting "Wagons Westward" for Harry Cohn.

Line or Two: "A Matter of Pride," mag yarn about a middle-aged American living on the Riviera and getting by on his wits, is being prepared at M-G-M as a Frank Morgan vehicle . . . Paramount is negotiating with the Shuberts for the Franz Lehar operetta, "Countess Maritza," for Gladys Swarthout . . . Arthur Hornblow, Jr., has signed a new Para pact . . .

LOVE ON SCREEN

Lorre Turns Sleuth on Screen

That most subtle of villains, inscrutable Peter Lorre, turns the other cheek in "Think Fast, Mr. Moto," the RKO Boston's current feature, and is revealed to his fans at the picture's final unwinding as a master sleuth.

Mr. Moto is the super-detective J. P. Marquard's typewriter has materialized. In his present film adventure, the wily smoothie is on the trail of international smugglers in the Far East.

The roly-poly Lorre, who appears to have shoved off considerable embonpoint recently, disguises himself as a Japanese for his latest film character. And, in his bag of tricks, he includes complete mastery of jiu-jitsu and the most amazing card mumbo-jumbo. You'd never recognize the little fellow.

To add romantic glamor to "Think Fast, Mr. Moto," good-looking Thomas Beck and pretty Virginia Field have been put to work on the hearts. Others in the interesting lineup of performers are Sig Rumann, J. Carol Naish and Murray Kinnell.

"Wimdjammer," with George O'Brien in the lead role, is the accompanying feature. O'Brien, cast-off to Honolulu aboard a millionaire's yacht, is picked up after a storm by a schooner loaded with munitions for the Orient. Thwarts the captain's plan to hold the millionaire for ransom.

Constance Worth, who was Mrs. George Brent briefly, is in the cast as are Gavin Gordon, William Hall and Brandon Evans.

'Stella Dallas' Proves New Stanwyck Triumph

By PEGGY DOYLE

If women MUST weep, Loew's State and Orpheum theaters this week are the spots for them to go Niobe, for "Stella Dallas" is the tear-jerker of the century.

It is also the vehicle for the finest, most sincere portrayal Barbara Stanwyck has ever given on the screen.

Since it was first announced that Sam Goldwyn contemplated a remake of this screen sob-story of a dozen years ago, it was almost unanimously agreed by those who presume to know about those things that Hollywood's fabulously successful producer finally was on the downgrade.

But he fooled them, as he has a habit of doing. In "Stella Dallas" he has a picture that's certain to keep hundreds of thousands of husbands waiting for their supper for months to come. For "Stella Dallas" is essentially a woman's picture and bound to do a smashing matinee business.

There's no unusual twist to "Stella Dallas." It is simply the story of a mother's unselfish love for her daughter. Stella is a cheap, ordinary woman who likes a good time, gaudy clothes and flashy, good-time Charlies. Married to sensitive, aristocratic Stephen Dallas, who adores her and would gently lead her to an appreciation of the finer things, Stella is restless, discontented. Even the arrival of a baby daughter, Laurel, whom she idolizes, fails to change the thrill-seeking Stella.

An unfortunate meeting at this time with a good-natured, free-spending, floridly handsome racetrack tout, eventually leads to Stella's forever losing her daughter's love and respect. Also, unfortunately, the girl never learns that this severance of ties has been accomplished by her miserably unhappy mother solely for the girl's own good.

The only fine thing about Stella Dallas is her sublimely unselfish love for her daughter. Miss Stanwyck make of this tawdry woman with her tinselly taste, her brassy voice and her motherly love a living, breathing masterpiece. It never seems to be acting for a minute. Anne Shirley, as the loyal and loving daughter, is splendid. Alan Hale, as the uncouth, fun-loving sport, is responsible for the picture's few laughs. His disintegration is skilfully accomplished. John Boles, as Stephen Dallas, and Barbara O'Neil, as the cultured schemer woman, are excellent in their respective roles.

Walkup Start For Match Race

New Record Likely At Suffolk Today

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston.

APPEALING AGAINST Rough Time over a distance of six furlongs in a special match race at Suffolk Downs today sets a new mark in New England racing.

It is the first time in local racing history that there has been a match race, and the fact it will feature two of the world's leading sprinters gives additional color to the affair.

Appealing recently thrilled a large crowd at Suffolk Downs when he ran the six-furlong distance in 1:09 3-5. On that occasion Appealing was flying at the start, came around the turn into the stretch at a dizzy clip, and then on to the wire on high.

I felt at the time Appealing could have run faster if he had been pressed. He was the class of the field, and was all by himself at the finish.

Appealing will carry 115 pounds in today's race. I do not believe this burden will be a great hardship to him.

Rough Time will carry 107 pounds, and is ready for the test with Appealing.

Racing Secretary Jim Munroe has arranged for a walk up start. This system will send the two famous horses away at a terrific speed and will give them a better chance to shatter Clang's record of 1:09 1-5.

Clang recently shipped in to Suffolk Downs, and it was planned to pit him against Appealing, Rough Time and some other great sprinters. Clang broke down while training, and it looked as if the sprint classic was definitely off.

Jim Munroe thought otherwise, and went to work on plans for a match race between Appealing and Rough Time. Charles F. Adams, president of Suffolk Downs, was all for Munroe's idea.

It was agreed to put up a purse of $1500 and to pay $500 extra to the winning horse in the event a new record was established.

The match race between Appealing and Rough Time recalls match races of other days. One of the most famous of the match races was that between Man O' War and Sir Boston.

There will be the usual mutuel betting on today's match race. Some of the careful bettors, Eddie Mack insists, will ask for place tickets.

With two horses, of course, only win tickets will be sold. You will have to name your horse, and then wait with the rest of the fans to see what happens. I look for a thrilling race with the chances favoring the winner at least equalling Clang's record.

* * *

On to Narragansett!

WHILE THE CROWD is gathering at Suffolk Downs for the final day of the summer meeting, race goers are already looking forward to the opening of the Narragansett meeting on Monday.

Race fans must have a little gypsy blood in their makeup as they are always anxious to move on to a new track. The winners feel the new spot will offer them additional opportunities to build up their bankrolls, while the losers contend they will get a better break from fate at the track that is about to open.

The form players fared well during the Suffolk Downs meeting. The better horses won more than their share of races. This was particularly true in the stake races when the class horses ran very true to form.

There are already 500 horses on the grounds at Narragansett Park, and by the early part of next week Racing Secretary Pat Horgan will have 1500 thoroughbreds to fill his races.

Narragansett Park will benefit from the summer vacationists, and also from the fact there will not be any horse or dog racing in Massachusetts while it is in operation other than a small horse meeting at Marshfield Fair.

Joe Louis to Keep Promise

WHEN JOE LOUIS won the world heavyweight championship by knocking out Jimmy Braddock, he told newsmen he would defend his title four times a year if the promoters could obtain suitable opponents.

Nobody took the new champion seriously at the time, as it has been a custom for years for heavyweight champions not to risk their precious titles more than once a year.

Jimmy Braddock had been inactive for two years before stepping into the ring with Louis. Perhaps it was partly due to Braddock's dismal showing in his championship defense contest that Louis decided to be an active champion.

Louis is fighting Tommy Farr in New York on August 26, and there are reports to the effect he is signed to collide with Max Schmeling in Philadelphia the latter part of September.

Bill Farnsworth, new vice-president of the Twentieth Century Club, has the assurance of the Louis management that the "Brown Bomber" will defend his title twice during the indoor season at the New York Garden.

The Twentieth Century Club has contracted to take sixteen dates at the New York Garden, and it is anxious to stage the best possible matches.

Louis is the most destructive puncher since the palmy days of Jack Dempsey. He still has a jaw weakness, as Schmeling and Braddock proved, but by improving his defense Louis will be in less danger of getting hit.

Schmeling is the most dangerous threat to Louis' ring supremacy, but it is possible Der Max may never receive an opportunity to shoot for the title.

FRESHMEN SAVE BEES

Win 25 of Club's 50 Victories

By JOE CASHMAN

The Bees' freshman twirling twins continue to write mound history.

The Swarm's latest homecoming saw Silent Lou Fette sleer his mates to their 50th win and himself to his 14th victory by turning back the very drab Dodgers from Brooklyn with six singles.

And this afternoon, Sunny Jim Turner will step out in quest of his 12th triumph in the second game of the series.

Yes, that's correct. The McKechniemen have captured 50 decisions, and Fette and Turner have accounted for just half of them.

Right there you have the reason why the Bees, with a club batting average of less than .250, are in fifth place and rated the most surprising outfit in the majors this season.

NO SPRING PHENOM

Without these former American Association aces we shudder to think of where the Allston athletes would be languishing in the race at this writing.

With the peerless pair becoming more effective as the campaign progresses, the Swarm has high hopes of finishing in the first division.

There are a few better first-year pitching records on the books than Fette and Turner are compiling, but we can't recall any team ever finding two from the same season who came through as brilliantly as have these freshman stars, each of whom was allowed to blush unseen in the minors for almost a decade before getting this chance.

Scouts called on the carpet for being blind to Fette so long, offered the alibi that he was a Spring pitcher who lost his stuff as soon as the weather turned hot.

It seemed there might be something to the report when Lou was knocked out of the box on the final day of the Bees' last home stay and suffered the same fate on his first two starts in the West.

But the big Dutchman has very definitely given the lie to that story by his performances the last two times out.

Bill McKechnie relates that Lou never pitched a better game than he flashed last Sunday, when the Cubs outpicked him, 3 to 2.

FANS 8 DODGERS

He said that before the start of the Friday fray.

We doubt very much if the Windy City performance had anything on the one Fette turned in against the Dodgers.

At least, we never saw Lou when he looked so impressive.

Every time we watched him previously, he seemed to be getting by with a "nothing" ball. He threw a high hard one occasionally, but always fooled it.

This time, though, he was rifling his fast ball past the Dodgers for strikeouts. He fanned eight, which was a season's high for him, to our knowledge, and more than he usually whiffing in four games.

Despite failing to gain a victory during the last trip, Lou's win record him to the position of the National League's leading pitcher with 14 wins and but four setbacks.

His failure to win in the West, we hear, was due to a sprained ankle, suffered just before the trip began. He couldn't pitch naturally because of the pain and stiffness in his leg and lost his usually perfect control.

GOOD FOR 20 WINS

He's entirely recovered now and feels fully fit to finish the year as one of the very few hurlers in major league history who gained 20 victories their first year up.

Lou lived up to his reputation of being a fair country hitter as well as a great pitcher against the Dodgers.

He cracked out a single off Watty Hoyt in the third to start a two-run rally which tied the score. Rabbit Warstler followed with a double and when Elbie Fletcher then bashed out a single, the count was knotted.

And it remained so until the eighth, when Roy Johnson got a life on a Lavagetto fumble. Gene Moore tripled and Vince DiMaggio propelled his tenth homer into the left field stands.

It was the Bees' third straight win since the close of a rocky western trip and also their eighth straight win at the Hive.

EAST'S BEST IN HEARST FINAL

DUAL RACE AT DOWNS

International News Photograph Service

Paul Guibord of Melrose, former Dartmouth College athlete, who went into action today at Los Angeles, California, in the finals for the Hearst Grand National men's tennis championship. Guibord has been the sensation of the tournament. He won both the New England and Eastern Hearst singles and also doubles, paired with Ed Fuller of Salem. He was conceded an excellent chance of bringing the Hearst National singles crown back to New England.

Rough Time Appealing Clash

By TRACKMAN

The first match race in the history of New England thoroughbred competition will be contested at Suffolk Downs this afternoon as the Summer Meeting at the East Boston track comes to a conclusion.

It will be Motor City Stable's Appealing versus J. Y. Christmas's Rough Time in a six furlong speed duel in an attempt to break the world record of 1:09 1-5 set by Clang at Coney Island several seasons ago.

Tommy Luttner will be up on Appealing, while Ken McCombs will have the leg up on Rough Time. Appealing will carry 115 pounds. Rough Time has been asked to carry 107.

Charles F. Adams and his associates are offering a purse of $1500 to the winner of the match race, and if the record of Clang's is tied or broken, the Eastern Racing Association will add an extra $500 to the pot.

There will be straight betting on the event, and the association's share of the mutuels will be given to charity.

This speed duel has created a great deal of excitement among New England turf patrons, and some 20,000 are expected to be on hand for the event.

The racing clan moved on Narragansett Park over the week-end. Monday's opening day feature will be the renewal of the Blackstone Valley Handicap, six furlong feature.

Dave Wilson Picks Appealing

"Appealing can afford to give seven pounds to his younger rival," says the Boston American expert, "and should lead from flagfall to finish."

Newsom on Hill Against Nats

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14—Garrulous Buck Newsom, who used to pitch for the Senators, will pitch against them this afternoon when the Boston Red Sox try to square the current series. Ed Linke will twirl for the home side.

Newsom will need more support from his mates than Fritz Ostermueller got if he is to win today, for Pete Appleton held the Sox to six scattered singles in the opening fray.

Ostermueller, incidentally, went out in the seventh inning with a strained ligament in his southpaw throwing arm, and it is doubtful if he will be of much service to the club the rest of the season.

With the pitching staff in poor condition as it was, Ostie's loss may be irreparable to the men of Cronin, who are tied for second place with the Tigers.

Baer to Meet Braddock Oct. 1

New York, Aug. 14 (US)—James J. Braddock, who won his heavyweight championship of the world from Max Baer two years ago and lost it to Joe Louis two months ago, will meet Baer in a return match in Madison Square Garden, October 1, it was disclosed today by Mike Jacobs.

Public Links Final On Coast Today

San Francisco, Aug 14 (AP)—Fireman Bruce McCormick of Los Angeles and Gas Works Employe Don Erickson of Alhambra, Calif., fight it out today over 36 holes for the national public links golf championship.

They charged into the finals of the tournament fashioned for the proletariat with decisive semi-final victories in 36-hole tests.

Big League Stars Yesterday

(By The Associated Press)

Carl Hubbell and Harry Danning, Giants—Hubbell fanned nine and allowed six hits to blank Phillies, 5—0. Danning drove in three runs with homer and single.

Mel Harder, Indians—Stopped White Sox, 7—3, with five hits.

French Bordagaray, Cardinals—Hit three singles, drove in one run in 6—1 win over Pirates.

Buck Ross, Ed Smith and Jack Rothrock, Athletics — Ross and Smith muffled Yanks with three hits; Rothrock's pinch-single scored two runs in winning rally for 4—3 victory.

Lou Fette, Bees—Stopped Dodgers, 3—2, with six hits, fanning eight.

Charley Root and Ken O'Dea, Cubs — Former's four-hit relief pitching for 7 1-3 innings handcuffed Reds as O'Dea led attack in 22—6 victory with four singles, driving in four runs.

Mat Results

New York—Steve Casey, 225, Ireland, pinned Abe Goldberg, 215, New York, in 17:16, with body slam and body press.

Brockton—Paddy Mark, Philadelphia, defeated Billee Murdock, Tennessee, taking first fall and being declared winner for third when Murdock was disqualified for roughness.

LUBIN Hearst Net CHOICE

TITANS CLASH ON COAST

By MEL GALLAGHER

Los Angeles, Aug. 14 (US)—Although each of the four sections represented have competed in the final round for the first annual Hearst Grand National tennis championships, California stars loom as winners of two of three major titles at the Los Angeles Tennis Cluub.

Consolation matches to decide third and fourth places served as a lull for the title aspirants who watched the semifinal round losers from the sidelines.

Ronald Lubin of Los Angeles opposes the other eastern trophy candidate, Paul L. Guibord of Boston, with the men's singles title at stake over the long three or five set route.

West coast netters got another track at a crown in the men's doubles which follows when Worth Oswald and Gene Smith of Berkeley grapple the solid stroking Southerners, Bert Wiltems and Jesse Pfeiffer of San Antonio, Tex.

MARY BRIAN THERE

Something of an anti climax—but interesting because it involves West Coast vs. Middle West rivalry—a mixed doubles match, concludes the tennis hostilities with Jacque Virgil of Beverly Hills and Gene Smith of Berkeley paired against Miss Stiel and Milton Ruehl of Milwaukee.

Pretty Mary Brian, star of the silver screen, will be on hand to present the Hearst trophies to winners and runners up.

Carl Fischer of Detroit unleashed a powerful forehand drive, a stroke that he used to advantage in losing to Guibord in the semifinals, and with the lethal shot he defeated Jesse Pfeiffer of Texas for third place in the men's singles yesterday.

Pfeiffer, a crackerjack retriever on clay courts, failed to negotiate Fischer's fast travelling shots, and he proved an easy victim in sequent sets.

In a women's consolidated singles, Miss Virgil defeated Mrs. Etta Coyne of Atlanta 6-2, 6-3. Miss Virgil substituted for Catherine Malcolm, West Coast Hearst sectional champion.

LUBIN VS. GUIBORD

Lubin is regarded the likely winner of the men's singles against Guibord. Guibord's problem will be to keep the attacking Lubin away from the net —something Pfeiffer couldn't do.

Lubin's service is consistently more powerful than Guibord's, although the Boston ace seems to be able to produce winners when most pressed.

The Easterner will doubtlessly rely on looping forehand drives and tireless court covering ability to dent Lubin's offense.

In women's singles Miss Stiel's long driving backcourt game should prove bothersome to the tournament favorite, Miss Germaine, but the latter, who once won the National Public Parks Women's Singles, is seasoned with a change of pace and likely will solve the Chicagoan's strong side.

The Texans, Pfeiffer and Wiltems, closed the rugged competition in the semifinal round when they defeated the Milwaukee tandem, Dave Lesnick and Milton Ruehl. So they are rewarded worthy foes to Oswald and Smith, dynamic attacking Berkeley netmen, for the combination championship.

FULLER WINS TWICE

In one of the hardest-hitting matches of the tournament Guibord and Edward Fuller of Boston defeated Leavens and Ruehl for third place in men's doubles, by scores of 4—6, 6—3, 7—5, 3—6, 8—6.

The ability of Guibord and Fuller to pile hammerlike drives through the middle of the Milwaukee-Texas defense spelled defeat for the Middle West champions.

Ruehl and Leavens lost golden opportunities to take vital leads in the third and fourth sets. They led 5-2 in the third set and 5-4 in the fourth set with their own service coming up but bowed before the superior driving of the Easterners.

In mixed doubles, Miss Germaine and Fuller won third place by defeating Mrs. Coyne and Bert Wiltens of San Antonio, 6—3, 6—3.

TRAVIS Retains LEAD

GEHRINGER GAINS 6 POINTS

New York, Aug. 14 (AP)—The batters below fourth plaue in baseball's big leagues are finding it tougher and tougher, week after week, to climb any higher on their chase after the hitting crowns.

Although Ducky Medwick increased his National League lead to 23 points over his nearest rival and Cecil Travis held a 12-point bulge in the American League race, not a change disturbed the standings of the top four clubbers through this week.

Travis, who dropped two points during the week, slipping to .386, was trailed by Lou Gehrig and Joe DiMaggio, the Yankees' chief executioners, and Charley Gehringer of Detroit. Gehringer was the only one of the four to gain during the week, hitting 11 for 25 to boost his mark six points to .365.

Medwick, still riding along over the .400 mark, slipped one point to .401, but his second-place rival, the Cubs' Gabby Hartnett, fell 14 points to .378, followed by Pittsburgh's Paul Waner and Johnny Mize of the Cardinals.

Reversing the procedure of the past few weeks, the pitchers had their innings this time, generally slicing generous portions off the batters' batting marks. Biggest drop was Hartnett's in the National League, and Beau Bell of the Browns in the American. Bell fell from sixth to eighth place with .342.

Standings of the first 10 in each league:

Clingendaal $5000 'Cap Choice

By DAVE WILSON
Selections for Fast Track
BEST BET—BUSTER BOY.
5TH RACE

Suffolk Downs, Aug. 14—Ten crack three-year-olds, headed by A. C. Compton's Clingendaal and Mrs. Emil Denmark's War Minstrel, have been named to match strides in the $5000 added Constitution Handicap, mile feature on a well-balanced getaway card here today.

Although packing top weight of 124 pounds, Clingendaal, which equalled the local track record for a mile in winning the Independence Handicap, looks all over a winner, despite the presence of War Minstrel, which took his measure in the mile and three-sixteenths of the Yankee Stakes.

Buster Boy, as placed in the mile of the fifth number, shapes up as the safest hazard on the card. In the last race, this gelding finished a bangup third to Wise Will and Breezing Along on a muddy track —the sort of going he has shown a complete disliking for in the past.

FIRST—Dark War, Maple Queen, Browneyed Pat

SECOND—Balkanese, St. Nick, Lord Tournament

Anything can happen in this wide open affair. BALKANESE, close up in most recent starts, earns the call, but he cannot afford to make a single mistake as improving St. Nick figures to be close. LORD TOURNAMENT is really the class and with expected improvement may prove a real tough nut to crack.

THIRD—Bright Melody, Lugano, Irksome.

BRIGHT MELODY, second to Whippercracker in last race and winner of prior test, easily earns the call over $2,250 top—$1000 bottom rivals in this route number. LUGANO, on slow side in last race, figures well on a previous winning effort. IRKSOME, a sprinter, may prove difficult to catch if allowed to open up a long lead in the early stages of the race.

FOURTH—Swiftlet, Grandpa's Boy, Waxwing

SWIFTLET, pitted too highly in two efforts over the local racing strip, needs only to duplicate good Rockingham Park form to earn brackets in this $1250 top—$1000 bottom claimer. GRANDPA'S BOY, which showed a complete dislike for a slow track in last room at Suffolk, is no danger, although WAXWING, which won a sprint test the other day, is sure to be heavily supported to the "iron men."

FIFTH—Buster Boy, Furfiber, Prince Fox

BUSTER BOY will probably have Further to head for main honors, the latter closed a big gap in a sprint race last trip, and the additional quarter of a mile of this number will be right to his liking. PRINCE FOX was heavily backed to down the top selection, but never threatened at any stage of the journey although racing in his favorite going.

SIXTH—Clingendaal, War Minstrel, Chicolorado

If anything runs down CLINGENDAAL for major honors in this number, it will likely be WAR MINSTREL. The latter is a real class colt and may be attested by his Yankee Stakes victory. However, the Denemark colorbearer may up against it over this abbreviated route, which is three-sixteenths shorter than the Yankee. CHICOLORADO is strong in under 109 pounds and has better than an outside chance to grab off some part of the spoils.

SEVENTH—Candimate, Spicy, Free.

CANDIMATE stepped a mile and one-sixteenth in 1:46—excellent time for cheap platers—to win galloping by six full lengths from Budenia and others in his last outing. The Gallagher colorbearer packs no additional weight and looks all over a likely repeater. SPICY, second to Garden Message in last race, shapes up slightly better than FREE in the fight for place honors. The latter fashned remarkable improvement in last Story Time and others in his last essays.

EIGHTH—Notice Me, Paralda, Legender

NOTICE ME plodded a mile in 2:414 through the mud to win by three full lengths from John Tio and others in his last race. Mud or dry, Mervis Simmons' charge should experience little difficulty in clicking here. PARALDA, nosed out by Stone Martin in last, and LEGENDER shape up as the main dangers.

Brockton Horse Show to Hold 41 Classes

Brockton Fair Horse Show, one of the oldest and most popular blue-ribbon equine events in New England, has announced a prize list of 41 classes, with prize money and trophies valued at close to $3000, for its four-day parade of champions, September 13 to 16. Entries will close Saturday, August 21.

In addition to adding one day to this fixture, the horse-sohw committee, headed by Dr. Merton W. Poor, Brockton, as chairman, has eliminated forenoon classes, and scheduled continuous matinee performances from 1:30 to 6:00.

Another innovation this year will be the new location of the big tanbark ring, 200 by 100 feet, near the grove, where a more attractive setting than ever before is provided for the competitions. Thirty-six ringside boxes will be erected. No other entertainment feature will conflict with the equine rivalry at the new show site.

STRESS LOCALS

Prize lists for the show, which is a recognized fixture of the American Horse Show Association and a member of the Great Eastern Horse Show Circuit, also including Syracuse and Springfield fall shows, are being mailed to 1200 prospective exhibitors, according to Secretary Frank H. Kingman. Although Brockton show always has attracted representative stables of the country, emphasis is being placed this year upon local competition, and the blue ribbon awards are virtually sectional championships.

Three outstanding judges have accepted invitations to judge at Brockton: Mr. Earl L. Miller, Darien, Conn., for three and five-gaited saddle classes and equitation, and Charles H. Macomber, Framingham, for hunters and jumping classes. Miller, a former exhibitor of champions, has judged at the premier shows of the East. Mr. Macomber, a member of Millwood Hunt, is one of the Bay State's most popular judges in the hunting division, as well as a successful exhibitor.

STAKE AND TITLE EVENTS

Included among the 41 classes are six stake and championship events, including a champion pony and jumping stake, newly added. Other stakes are for three-gaited saddle horses, five-gaited saddle horses, saddle ponies and hunters. Other features include the famous Horsemanship and Good Hands championships for riders, winners being eligible for similar events at the National Horse Show this fall.

Herbert L. Tinkham is honorary show chairman. The horse show committee includes Ralph F. Burkard of Arlington, whose daughter Ursula, won the Brockton Good Hands Cup a year ago; William J. Kennedy of Boston, whose spectacular string of hunters and jumpers are scoring heavily this season; Ramsdell J. Brown, Brockton's veteran judge, official and coaching whip; C. Harvey Moore, active in the International military jumping at Boston Garden shows; Mrs. Arnold J. Bailey, John W. Filoon, Charles L. Fuller and Colonel Warren S. Keith, all of Brockton; Jack Grow, Hingham, and Arthur H. Lovesy, Milton, who has managed many Greater Boston shows. Dr. Harry W. Kingman, Easton, is veterinary.

Brockton Fair, celebrating its 63rd birthday this year, opens Sunday noon, September 12, closing Saturday, the 18th. ▼

Bob Larue Completes All Star Team

Hamilton, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP)—Bobby Larue's acceptance of a bid to play with the Eastern All-Stars against the New York Football Giants at the Polo Grounds the night of September 8 rounded out today the roster of college graduates in the squad to be coached by Andy Kerr of Colgate.

The flashy right halfback, who played an important part in Pittsburgh's 21-0 rout of Washington in the Rose Bowl last New Year's Day, was the 30th player to answer the call. He and his 29 mates will report to Kerr at Peddie School, Hightstown, N. J., on August 23.

In addition to 12 backs—three deep at every position—the All-Star squad includes five ends, among them Larry Kelley of Yale; five tackles with Slippery Monowicz of Holy Cross the biggest of a rangy lot; five guards, including Captain Fred Fetter, who also can be used at tackle, and three centers.

Picked by a committee consisting of Kerr, Fred Swan of Temple, the line coach; Lou Little of Columbia, and Sports Editor George Trevor and Stanley Woodward of the New York Herald-Tribune, sponsors of the game, the squad will be giving little in weight to the beefy professionals. The squad averages 193 pounds, the regular backs 183½ and the linemen 199.

Almost every member of the backfield group is a specialist. Five punters Kerr will have Fran Murray of Penn, Chick Kaufman of Princeton and Meyer, West Point. "Monk" Meyer is one of four able passers—The others are Murray, Mercy Kobrosky of Trinity and Stuart Smith of Bucknell—who will have the pass-snatching Kelley as their chief target.

Vannie Albanese, Syracuse fullback, and Bill Docherty, Temple tackle, can step in when placekicking is needed.

Kerr, originally planning a strong passing attack against the Giants, now is prepared to develop a more rounded offense. After scanning the complete roster, he says he looks as if we have as much power as they have, so I guess we'll run on them, too."

Jockey Johnson Startles Fans

Since the meeting opened August 7, W. L. Johnson of Greensboro, Ky., contract rider for Mrs. M. J. Murphy, Evansville, Ind., has finished in the money two-thirds of his 36 starts.

His sensational riding is one reason perhaps why his mount, Blessed Again, one of Mrs. Murphy's three entries, probably will go to the post the favorite in today's featured $1500 Governor's handicap, a one mile spin for three-year-olds and upward.

During his brief riding career, Johnson says he has accepted 638 mounts and finished in the money 277 times. His record includes 108 winners, 88 runnersup and 84 thirds.

ESPOSA Hits New High FOR SEASON

By Associated Press.

William Ziegler, Jr.'s, Esposa already has won more money than she did last year. The five-year-old mare, out of the money only four times in 12 races this year, boosted her earnings for 1937 to $27,225 when she won the Delaware handicap at Saratoga yesterday for her fourth victory. Last year she won $26,985 with three firsts, eight seconds and four thirds in 22 starts.

Yesterday's triumph, scored in the role of the 8 to 5 favorite, was one of her easiest of the season. She pulled away in the stretch to finish four lengths in front of Warhead, Greentree Stable's 2nd, while Walter M. Jeffords' Jean Bart trailed by another four for third money.

Go Home, a four-year-old gelding from Col. Phil Page's Maemere Farm, is showing that he likes the Saratoga track. The son of Grandace has started three times at the upstate course and each time had been in front at the finish. The third victory came yesterday in beating a large field of Class "C" performers while held at 3 to 1.

Monday is closing day for stakes at Belmont Park, Aqueduct and Pimlico. Some of the events are due to be run during the fall season while the Pimlico stakes are for this year and 1938. The manner in which horsemen have been naming their charges indicates a heavy entry list in all the stakes.

Simon Healy, who has 29 horses, including yearlings, in his stable at Saratoga, will ship the greater part of his older horses to Narragansett Park, where the summer meeting opens Monday. The yearlings will be broken and raced during the winter meetings.

Polish Court Star Bothered by Heat Wave

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP)—In a little over three weeks, Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Poland's tennis enjoy, has decided it's too hot in America; the people are very nice; the players the best she has met, and the language fascinating.

Except for a sore arm, a right foot blister on both feet and a persistent headache, Jadwiga (Yaja for short) is ready to depart for only fellow Alice Marble of San Francisco, the American women's champion, in the final ball of the Eastern grass court singles championship at the Westchester Country Club.

Jadwiga defeated Miss Marble the three times they met in Europe, but was beaten in her first tournament in this country at Seabright, N. J., two weeks ago.

At Seabright, Aug. 1, last week, Jadwiga had no trouble winning. She was not anxious to talk about her match with Miss Marble after she had reached the final with a 6—3, 6—0 victory over Helen Jacobs, fourth-ranking American player, yesterday.

"I'm going to do my best against Miss Marble," she said, and added, "That's the best answer to give, eh?"

Her command of English is excellent, although she mixes in French and Polish once in a while. Her accent is pleasing and easily dissolve. She is curious about slang and her favorite American expression is "That's what you think."

After competing in the national singles at Forest Hills early in September, Miss Jedrzejowska hopes to go to California for the Pacific southwest tournament. But her enthusiasm was checked when the first round California is blown in the sunshine state. She's had enough sunshine here.

JORDANS, Saints Try Again MONDAY

Jordans and St. Augustines are still trying to decide which will enter the finals of the Boston Park league and compete against the Casey Club of Neponset, which gained the last round by taking the Perse in their semi-final series.

Last night at Jordan Park stadium the fans saw one of the best games played on these grounds for a long time, 3-1 tie, with the Saints and Redmen continuing their great work. Hal Cheney for the Saints, and Weidaw and Bird for the interlopers, gave a remarkable display of hurling.

For the second time in as many nights Jordans called upon their most dependable hurler for relief work, and for the second time he did not let them down.

Coming to the mound in the fifth frame when the Retailers made a tight spot after Ken Weidaw had hit Bird with the first batter, and forced Ed O'Neil to pop to Eddie Towle on first base, and a double play on second resulted.

MacDonald, star shortstop of Jordans, then connected for his third consecutive hit, a single to deep Bilodeau to third and again the pressure was on Bird. He met the situation with a long fly to Bilodeau, fanning Bill Flynn to end the inning.

Cheney, for the Saints, also turned in a splendid night's work, holding the Retailers to three hits, while fanning eight and passing none.

John Kimball, at short for the Jordan team got away to a poor start, with his two boots in the first inning giving the Saints their run, but he came back strong and style the rest of the game, turning in great plays behind second.

The two teams resume their heetic series Monday night at the Dorchester Park, with Welsh for Jordans and Harris for St. Augustines. Without doubt, this semi-final series will be the hottest and best ever played in the Park League, and all records for crowds at the park will be smashed, as the Monday night at the Fields Corner pavilion.

Louis Does Eight Miles on Road

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Aug. 14 (AP)—Joe Louis thinks a lot of people probably will be out to see him during the week end, but he can't help that. He's gotta do of very busy days. He has six rounds of boxing scheduled today for his 4,000 admirers.

Louis had a comparatively light session yesterday, doing his usual six miles of road work early in the morning, then walking two more miles after breakfast. Then he was allowed to loaf until evening, when he dropped in at a nearby amateur boxing show.

ALL MARBLEHEAD RACE WEEK RECORDS BROKEN

DAY'S RECORD UP TO 436

Marblehead, Aug. 14—One more vast fleet hoisted sail here today as the annual Race Week came to a close in record breaking fashion. Well over 2500 starts were made by boats in all official classes during the seven days of crowded competition.

The one break in the all-sail program of the week came this morning when the youngsters of the Pleon Yacht Club ran off their annual comedy Bang-and-Go-Back race for power boats.

This event, handicapped by some strange and wonderful system that is understood not even by the officials, usually results in two-thirds of the competitors being disqualified—not for the usual rule infractions but merely for going too fast.

AWARD PRIZES TONIGHT

The trick in this contest is to run the second half of the race in no faster time than the first half, and still go speedily enough to outdistance all competitors.

Prizes, to be awarded on points after the close of the afternoon's races, will be presented this evening at the clubhouse.

In charge of the last three days of the Mid-Summer series were the veteran race officials, Frank Munro, Greg Connolly, Rob Fallon and Harry Bloomfield, assisted by the imported Boston Harbor experts, Howard Gannett and Bill Nickerson.

The junior fleet discouraged first by storms and then by overstrong winds, has been smaller than some seasons.

SALLY GETS DUNKED

"The previous single day record of 401 boats was made last year under Boston Yacht Club colors.

More fitting victory of the record day was that of Sally Smith who was celebrating her 14th birthday. Sally sailed her Squeekie to a win in the third division of the Brutal Beasts. The celebration was dampened a moment later, however, when Sally went overboard making her mooring.

For the second day in a row, Marion Lesson sailed Francis E. Waterman's Puritan Cup winning Robin to victory in the 25 rating Q class. The Robin gained the lead by clever sailing on the second leg and ran home ahead of Cara Ma and Tayzeta.

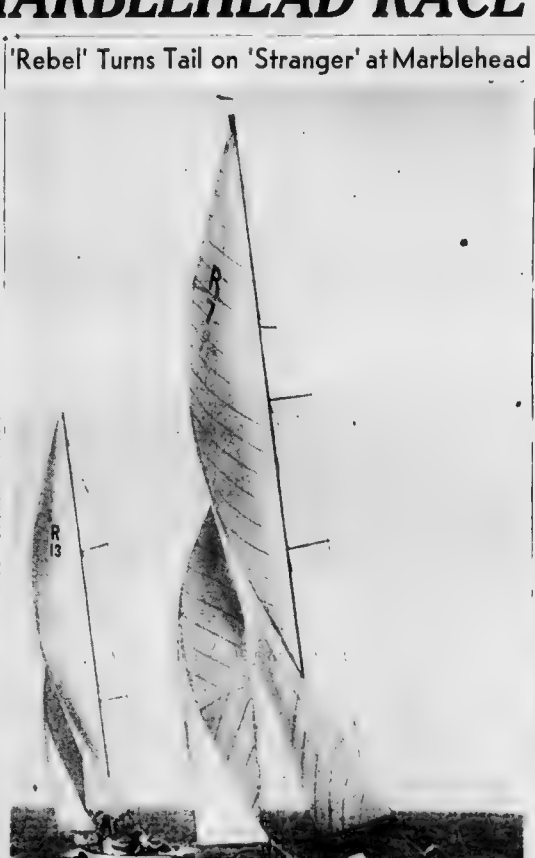
'Rebel' Turns Tail on 'Stranger' at Marblehead



Edward Gabriel's "Rebel" breezing along to victory closely pursued by Dan. E. Watson's "Stranger" during race week at Marblehead. "Rebel" has been a consistent winner in the annual yacht classic which ends this afternoon.

SHOW At Cohasset CLOSES

ERIN'S SON IN LINE FOR CUP

Cohasset, Aug. 14—Kings and queens of the thoroughbred horse show world vie for the third day running today as the most successful of all Cohasset Horse Shows rings down the curtain at the beautiful Deer Hill estate of Mrs. Hugh Bancroft.

Record crowds have been in attendance for Thursday and Friday programs.

Exhibitors from all over the East have been at Cohasset in numbers, with the result that competition has been keen, spirited and productive of superb horsemanship.

On the strength of Erin Son's stand performance in Thursday's qualifying test, the beautiful chestnut gelding from Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kennedy's Audwil Stables is regarded by most popular favorite for this year's trophy.

However Erin Son must turn in an excellent performance to capture the Bancroft cup. Sunbeam's Gael Song, was a close second in the Thursday's test and is one of the mare which must be figured.

Speedboat Pilots Open Competition At Redbank

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 14 (AP)—The nation's foremost motorboat pilots launched a three-day assault on marine speed records today on the Navesink River here with the most of attention centered on the feature race for 225 cubic inch hydroplanes.

Thirteen entrants, including the defending champion Arno Apel of Astoria, L. I., [illegible] Miss Ann Peck, Chester [illegible] Miss Ann Peck, Chester [illegible] Cooper's boat, Tops II, was a strong favorite to capture the Seidel gold trophy and gain points in the annual race for the Bushmills [illegible] award.

The 13-mile inch class for the Interstate flights was expected to provide a battle between Rudy Schnell of Bricktown, N. J., and Fred Hahns Babe, Top Flight, Philadelphia.

Turner, who [illegible] a non-stop skyevent will be run off tomorrow in three heats of 15 miles for the championship of $1,000 endowed by Melvin Crook, Princeton University graduate from Montclair.

ENTRIES CLOSE SATURDAY, AUGUST 21

Braintree Girls In Bike Tests

Alice Torrey, Ruth Lewis, Betty Osbourne and Peggy Holbrook were among the first to send in their entries for the girls competition.

In all hundreds of boy and girl riders, ranging from 12 to 18 years of age inclusive, will be on the starting lines when the Monday, August 23, competition opens on the Fair Grounds half mile strip.

They awakened bright and early the next morning, took a turn or two about the track, were fresh and chipper at the 10 a. m. starting hour, and one of them went on to win a handsome first prize bicycle.

To them the experience was worthwhile. It was something to talk about in the years to come.

While their experience does not necessarily have to be a sample for others to enjoy this year, it does demonstrate the lengths which kids will go to gain a worthwhile objective.

But at this moment the most important fact to remember is that entries close one week from today Saturday August 21.

'Runt' Returns

War Admiral in Test at Spa

Saratoga Springs N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP)—War Admiral, the little horse that won the nation's three-year-old championship last spring, came back to the races today after a two months enforced vacation.

Under full racing colors, the fiery son of Man O War was to share honors with the Travers, America's oldest horse race, in a gallop down the home stretch of the track where he daddy met his on, defeat.

The public showing of "The Runt" as his owner, Samuel D. Riddle, calls him, was planned to show racing fans that he is on the way back after a painful injury in the Belmont Stakes June 7. Victory that day, added to the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness gave the little colt his title.

"The Runt is going places again," Riddle said as he patted the reddish skin of his new stable ace. "He's working the three furlongs in speedy fashion now, and he'll be ready to run again this fall."

Immediate objective for the Admiral, Riddle said, is the Lawrence Realization and, after that, the mile-miles of the Jockey Club Gold Cup, a race that stamps its winner as a real champion. Both are to be run at Belmont Park, the latter on Oct. 2

Shorn of the spur and a corner of his left forefoot at the start of the Belmont, the champion has grown strong and hearty. Time it took to do it has been dropped to the very kindergarten of his training.

"We've got to wind the little fellow up slowly," Riddle added. "After the new foot was sealed we started him in short walks, gradually working him up to short gallops and breezes. Time it took to do it has been dropped to the very kindergarten of his training."

Riddle, who also owned Man O War and saw his champion of 20 years ago beaten by an upset in the Sanford stakes here regards his present star as Big Red's best offspring and wants to see him eclipse his daddy's record.

And though the Admiral isn't running in the Travers the Maryland master of Glen Riddle Farms thinks he might do it.

Speedboat Pilots Open Competition At Redbank

Red Bank, N. J., Aug 14 (AP)—The nation's foremost motorboat pilots launched a three-day assault on marine speed records today on the Navesink River here with the most of attention centered on the feature race for 225 cubic inch hydroplanes.

Thirteen entrants, including the defending champion Arno Apel of Astoria, L. I., [illegible] Miss Ann Peck, Chester [illegible] Miss Ann Peck, Chester [illegible] Cooper's boat, Tops II, was a strong favorite to capture the Seidel gold trophy and gain points in the annual race for the Bushmills [illegible] award.

The 13-mile inch class for the Interstate flights was expected to provide a battle between Rudy Schnell of Bricktown, N. J., and Fred Hahns Babe, Top Flight, Philadelphia.

Jet-propelled aircraft [illegible] held the center of interest today as Col. Roscoe [illegible] Turner and Harold Harris hit eastbound and cannes will come into the picture tomorrow.

Turner, who [illegible] a non-stop sky-event will be run off tomorrow in three heats of 15 miles for the championship of $1,000 endowed by Melvin Crook, Princeton University graduate from Montclair.

WOMEN At Essex MONDAY

POLISH QUEEN TOPS LIST

The tennis circuit swings away from Metropolitan New York and into New England where for the next two weeks, starting Monday, the world's greatest male and female racquet artists will wage merry old warfare.

New England's swank spots, Newport Casino and Manchester-by-the-Sea's Essex County Club, hold the center of the stage next week, both preliminaries to the national doubles which come to Longwood Cricket Club one week from Monday, Aug. 23.

Thanks to the return of the Davis Cup to America's shores tennis interest is at a new 20-year high, with pasteboards for the Essex and Longwood tourneys already at a premium.

CHILEAN CHAMPION IN

Donald Budge, Frankie Parker and all the other heroes of the courts will be sporting their ground strokes at Newport on Monday, while the fair-haired gals, some 32 in number, clamber about the beautifully groomed Manchester courts.

Despite the absence of United States and Great Britain's top ranking women who on Friday and Saturday measure racquet equipment in Wightman Cup international rivalry, the New Yorker the Essex field has a need for apology.

Titles in the Anne Marble Hearn Jacobs, Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, Dixon, Babcock, Mrs. John Van B. and Dorothy Bundy, be listed among the starting gates as well as Mrs. Kay Stammers of Mr. Doard and the pride of the English damsels, but the Essex committee considers with a view of forcing and Polish queen who will do justice to the queen fields of other years.

ALLISON MISSING

Latest entry in that of Texas Van Ryn of Philadelphia, who will [illegible] Wilmer Allison, his Texas [illegible] partner, has for years been considered one of the best doubles players in the business.

Allison will be missing this year however. He has a [illegible] strained ligament in [illegible] during his match with Frankie [illegible] Shields at Seabrook but failed to respond.

McCoy Busiest Heavy

Shucco Bout Will Be Fourth in Two Months

A showdown in the bitter ring feud between Al McCoy, heavyweight champion of New England and Tony Shucco comes a week from next Monday night, when they collide for the third time at Fenway Park in the feature of the Goodwin A. C. boxing show, listed for 12 rounds.

Not since the famous battles between Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney has New England had a heavyweight hill-billy feud of this type, a natural from all angles, with plenty of hatred between the free-swinging gentlemen involved.

"This will be the last bout I'll have with Shucco," McCoy said today, between wallops at the big bag in Burkie's gym. "It's time I shook him off the trail. This time a keen victory is going to rent all shucco claims to the title."

McCoy, apparently going the way of too much flesh just a few months back as he lazed around, beefy and slow, suddenly awakened to the cries of alarm by his best friends and severest critics.

"He needs more fights," they shouted. "He's getting rusty and robust from being idle too much."

A smart young fellow, McCoy didn't have to be tipped off twice. In the past six weeks he had three fights, and added three victims, Natie Brown, Jack McCarthy and Red Barry, the latter two by kayoes in round three.

Shucco will make it four fights in two months, which just about makes McCoy the busiest young heavyweight in the industry.

McCoy, today, can probably beat any heavyweight in the industry with the possible exception of champion Joe Louis. Yet he's got first fight, and lost a whisker decision, a big job to prove it against Shucco in the second, the N E title Shucco, a thorn in McCoy's side going with it.

WONDERLAND PARK CLOSES

By SAM COHEN

Wonderland, Revere, after the greatest season in its three years of racing history, draws the curtain tonight on the greyhound racing meet. The Old Harbor Kennel Club returns to Revere for a 17-day fall meeting on October the first.

Tonight's card features two big events. Of chief importance is the American Greyhound Sprint Championship, involving seven picked kennel stars.

The second big feature will be the Derby consolation race over the 675 yards course. This will be the ninth race in the eight card at 11 o'clock. Eight greyhounds are entered from the two heats in the series.

The sprint event will pit seven of the fastest dogs in the country against each other in a three race series. Each dog will run once from each box. The dog with the highest number of points will be declared the champion.

Savings Regulate Planned Spending

Quietly, constantly for years the reward of using good common sense, exercising will power, forming proper habits is shown when 300 depositors of the Merchants Co-operative Bank are advised that through their savings on a systematic monthly basis of approximately $375,000, plus the interest accumulated thereon, over $500,000 is theirs and is ready to work for them in any way or ways which is desired. Certainly a nice, tidy sum to have a reserve fund earning money daily or available for purchase or spending for the pleasures or benefits of life.

The uses the people make of this money is interesting: $80,000 has been used to retire, in full, mortgages held by the Merchants Co-operative Bank; $100,000 used for payment of bills, travel, investment, purchase of real estate and miscellaneous; $200,000 used for purchase of matured, reissued or paid up shares in the bank which in turn immediately starts earning thousands of dollars a year for these depositors.

This record is repeated approximately four times each year, year in and year out, making approximately $2,000,000 a year, on funds available as a result of systematic monthly saving.

Hurley's Protest On Flood Control

In a letter to Senator David I. Walsh, Governor Hurley made his position plain. He said:

"In reply to your several communications relative to the official position of Massachusetts upon the subject matter of the proposed ratification of the interstate compacts for flood control in the basins of the Connecticut and Merrimack rivers, let me state that it is both surprising and disappointing that there is opposition to the ratification of the compacts as approved by the legislatures of the signatory states.

AGREEMENT EXPEDITED

"At every stage of negotiation we had the commendable assistance and co-operation of the authorized representatives of the federal government and the signatory states were, in my opinion, justifiably proud of the expedition with which they met the request of the War Department for a speedy agreement between the several sovereign states.

"The contention is made that if the compacts are approved there might result an interference with the federal government's present control of power and water conservation for power purposes. I am convinced that the rights of the United States in this instance are not in jeopardy.

INVADES STATE RIGHTS

"The vesting of title in lands and rights of way within the Commonwealth in the Federal government, as proposed in S. J. Res. 198, would, in my opinion, constitute an unjustifiable invasion of the rights of the State. The inherent rights of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts must not be destroyed. I subscribe as strongly to this sentiment as I do to the proposition that all rights of the Federal government must also be preserved.

CONFERENCE NEEDED

"The passage of Senate J. Res. 198 in substitution for Senate J. Res. 117, would be a futile gesture. There is a serious question whether a compact between the four sovereign States could ever be effected pursuant to its provisions. The reality which we hope that we should not be postponed nor rendered impossible of achievement by the intrusion of problems alien to the issue of need.

"If ratification of compacts as submitted appears impossible, I suggest an immediate conference between the President and the governors of the signatory States."

FLOOD Control Plan ASSAILED

If the price of Congressional ratification of the New England flood control compacts is the extension of federal authority over New England rivers and streams beyond that established by existing federal statutes, then New England will undoubtedly choose to sacrifice the compacts and their prospective benefits, is the opinion expressed to President Roosevelt in a letter from James W. Hook, president of the New England Council.

The Honorable Franklin Delano Roosevelt,
President of the United States,
Washington, D. C.
My dear Mr. President:

Since you are well acquainted with the origin and purposes of the New England Council, I know you will appreciate our pleasure and satisfaction in the success of four of our states in negotiating the inter-state compacts for flood control works on the Connecticut and Merrimac rivers, now before Congress for ratification. We rejoiced not only because of the prospective measure of protection from flood damage, such as we experienced last year, but because these compacts, we felt, demonstrated, in admirable degree, the desire and capacity of the New England states to cooperate for the solution of economic problems common to the area.

NO ROOM FOR DOUBT

Consequently New England was totally unprepared for the objections which have been made in Washington to the ratification of the compacts in the form agreed to by the negotiators, approved by the legislatures of the four states and submitted by the governors. We are not even sure that we fully understand just what those objectors have in mind. However, certain matters relating to this discussion stand out so clearly that there is no room for doubt whatsoever, as far as New England is concerned.

BACK GOVERNOR

I feel I am speaking advisedly when I say to you that the citizens of these four states, and indeed of all New England, will give their whole-hearted and determined support to any Governor or other chosen representative in opposition to any extension of federal authority over rivers and streams beyond that established by the Constitution and existing federal statutes.

WILL PROTECT RIGHTS

To New England even the smallest of our mountain streams is precious, and our people will jealously protect all the rights which they now enjoy in them. Far beyond their value for power purposes, the rivers and streams of New England constitute our most important single natural resource, essential to the maintenance of our population, the maintenance and expansion of our intensive and diversified industrial activity, and the further development of our great recreational industry.

We feel, in short, that the four New England states have, in good faith, performed their part under the federal flood control legislation. We see no reason why Congress need hesitate to place its approval upon the compacts. We want flood control works, but we place an even higher value upon the preservation of all our existing rights over our water resources. We would welcome the exercise of your good offices in the situation.

National Bank Deposits Rise

Washington, Aug. 14 (AP)—The 5298 active national banks had deposits totaling $26,765,913,000 on June 30, the comptroller of the currency reported.

This was $250,802,000 more than the deposit total on March 31 and surpassed all previous records except that for last December 31, when deposits aggregated $27,808,-297,000.

The banks' assets on June 30 totaled $30,337,071,000, an increase of $267,809,000 over March 31, and $634,232,000 over June 30 a year ago.

Holdings of federal obligations totaled $8,219,195,000, $8,165,225,000 and $8,447,364,000 on the respective dates. Loans and discounts on June 30 were $8,807,782,000, an increase of $330,578,000 over March, and $1,048,633,000 over June a year ago.

N. Y. Banks Hold Fewer U. S. Bonds

New York reporting member banks in the week ended August 11 recorded the largest decline in holdings of government securities, direct and guaranteed, in seven weeks. The drop of $71,000,000 cut the total to $3,835,000,000.

This apparently was due in part at least to the low level of excess reserves in New York during the period. This situation, which saw local banks' excess as low as $40,-000,000, was corrected the past two days. Thursday morning excess reserves were estimated at almost $100,000,000.

What Would Do Most to Bring Prosperity?

By B. C. FORBES

Two developments which could contribute most to bringing about genuine nation-wide prosperity are:

The first seems reasonably assured. Canada, according to present estimates, will be able to export less wheat than the United States, an unusual record in recent years. Almost all other big producing countries are represented as having either very poor or very ordinary crops. Therefore, the agricultural phase of our outlook can be regarded as unusually satisfactory.

But home-building prospects are different.

This writer is sailing for Europe. On his last visit, three years ago, he was tremendously impressed by the amount of home-building which had been done and was under way in Britain. Everybody familiar with the facts agreed that it was the building of homes which, more than anything else, stimulated economic and employment revival in that country. Reports lately received indicate that this form of construction activity has slowed up, largely because of rising costs. An effort will be made to discover the facts.

Unfortunately, an unqualifiedly optimistic view cannot be taken of home-building prospects in our own country. Reason: High costs.

The fundamental truth is that building tradesmen are so irregularly employed that, in order to eke out an existence, they must be paid abnormally high hourly and daily wage rates. Until some system is evolved whereby they can be assured reasonably steady employment throughout the year, this extremely awkward, unhealthy, restrictive condition is likely to continue.

* * *

Special concern over the rising cost of building materials and labor shortage was expressed at a recent conference of the Royal Burghs of Scotland. Action was taken by Glasgow corporation to organize a competition for houses built from other materials than brick. As prices of certain materials had risen from 35 to 100 per cent since last September, it was agreed unanimously to appeal to the secretary of state for Scotland for assistance to overcome the problem."

"The London County Council proposes an expenditure of $7,-000,000 to provide modern housing on a 50-acre tract for 11,000 persons — 2300 dwellings and in addition, shops, schools, public buildings and children's playgrounds.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Aug. 14—Crude rubber consumption by U. S. manufacturers in July dropped 15.7 per cent under the preceding month and was 9.5 per cent below July, 1936, statistics released by the Rubber Manufacturers Association announced today.

A drop in June sales of household model electric refrigerators to 385,770 units against 353,061 in May was reported by the Edison Electric Institute. June, 1936 sales totaled 257,371 units. For the six months sales were 1,705,-736 compared with 1,441,539 in the like 1936 period.

The transit industry's revenues for the week ending August 7 showed a gain of 4.20 per cent over the same 1936 week, the Transit Journal Revenue Indicator revealed. The Indicator stands at 104.20. In the preceding week it was at 100.29.

Standard Statistics Company announced that corporate bond maturities during September will total $71,347,500, comprising 55 issues of bonds and notes of which 50 issues amount to $1,000,000 or more. August maturities totaled $73,083,500.

New financing scheduled for next week by 42 municipalities totals $18,068,271 which includes the New York Port of Authority $15,000,000 issue of 3½ per cent general and refunding bonds, the Daily Bond Buyer said today. Total for the past week was $12,611,564.

The New York Produce Exchange announced its black pepper futures market will be closed every Saturday between now and Labor Day.

American Stores Co. reported sales for 6 days ended July 31 were $9,681,287 compared with $8,-884,879 in the like period last year. For the first seven months sales totaled $66,872,268, a decrease of 1 of 1 per cent from the comparable 1936 period.

Reports received by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York from commercial paper dealers show a total of $324,200,000 of open market paper outstanding on July 31, 1937. Outstandings for June 1937, amounted to $264,-600,000 and for July, 1936, $187,-600,000.

Shares of National Bond & Share Corp., a general management investment company, were admitted to trading on the New York stock exchange. They were previously traded in the unlisted department of the New York curb exchange. The corporation was formed in 1929 by the firm of Dominick & Dominick, a New York brokerage and underwriting house.

A stock exchange report shows several investment companies have reacquired sizable blocks of their stocks. Outstanding among holdings were: Adams Express, 941,378, an increase of 74,000 shares over the previous report; common, up nearly 100,000 and Transamerica Corp., 117,481, an increase of 71,481.

Cotton Prices Off in Past Week

New York, Aug. 14 (AP)—A government estimate putting the American cotton crop at 15,593,000 bales was regarded as bearish by the cotton goods trade with the result trading during the week was slight and prices on most types of coarse yarn gray goods were reduced.

Reports of a federal cotton loan agreement failed to stimulate business in cotton goods at the end of the week and prices continued to show a weakening tendency. Buyers continued to bid under the market. Prices on a number of finished cotton goods were revised downward.

The reductions, however, were accomplished in orderly fashion and turned the close of the week the market exhibited a moderately good tone as bidding increased and mills showed slight gains over the totals reported for the first two days of the week. Sales for the week, however, were estimated at only a small percentage of production.

World Copper Stocks Increase

New Life Insurance Production Up

New York, Aug. 14 (AP)—The Association of Life Insurance Presidents, in its monthly report to the Department of Commerce, said new life insurance production for the first seven months of 1937 was 7.5 per cent greater than in the like period of last year.

The amount for July was 8 on one per cent under July, 1936.

The report includes the business of 40 companies with 83 per cent of the total life insurance outstanding in all U. S. legal reserve companies.

Total new business for the seven months was $5,505,941,000 against $5,122,778,000 for the first seven months of 1936, and the total new business for July was $763,710,000 against $749,491,000 for July, 1936.

Member Trades 20.8 P. C. of Total

New York Stock Exchange members during the week ended July 17 traded 2,047,668 shares for their own account, or 20.80 per cent of total exchange transactions against 20.75 per cent in previous week and 21.06 per cent in week ended July 3, according to SEC compilations.

AMOSKEAG Industries Are GROWING

Seven new real estate deals have been completed in the last few weeks to again swell the number of diversified industries located in the mills in Manchester, N. H., now owned by Amoskeag Industries, Inc., locally financed corporation which took over the entire plant of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company from the liquidating trustee just a year ago.

NEW MACHINE CO.

The largest single deal was the sale of the Amoskeag machine shops to the Amoskeag Machine Company, a New Hampshire corporation headed by Alfred H. Vose and other Manchester men. The newly formed organization has purchased 160,000 square feet of space and is equipped to install and maintain machinery not only in Manchester but throughout New England.

MORE TEXTILE FIRMS

Announcement was also made of the leasing of 58,000 square feet of the Stark Mill building to the Waumbec Mills, Inc., high grade rayon manufacturers, with William Zopfi superintendent in charge. This organization which is expanding from its former Manchester location is now occupying several floors of the Number Four Mill.

Also the Manchester Worsted Company has leased 7500 feet of space and a number of looms in the Southern Division to manufacture worsted yarns and will begin operations immediately. William F. Mudge, former Amoskeag official heads this new company.

LAUNDRY AND BAKERY

Amoskeag Industries have also announced the leasing of space to the Morgan Linen Service, which has established a Northern New England laundry service depot in Manchester, and considerable space to the Cullen Biscuit Company, of Framingham, Mass., which will conduct its Northern New England operations out of Manchester.

In co-operation with the New Hampshire WPA administration considerable space has been leased for the administration's activities and the National Youth Administration has leased 17,000 square feet of space for its New Hampshire headquarters.

REAL ESTATE MANAGER

William F. McElroy, life long Manchester, N. H. resident and until recently connected with the Frank Rose Company, a prominent Boston realty firm, has been appointed to take charge of all real estate selling operations for Amoskeag Industries, Inc., in Manchester, N. H. The announcement was made by Arthur E. Morgan, president of Amoskeag Industries, Inc.

Mr. McElroy, a member of the Boston Realty Exchange, enters his new duties immediately, which consist of interesting firms of all types in using Amoskeag space for manufacturing of any kind. He will be in charge of both sales and rentals and his wide experience in handling industrial real estate will enable him to serve the Manchester organization as an expert adviser.

July Construction Again Increased

New York, Aug. 14—Construction during July continued to forge ahead to new high recovery levels although the advance over the like month a year ago was more moderate than in June.

The total for all classes of activity last month aggregated $327,-892,700 in the 37 eastern states, according to F. W. Dodge Corp. against $317,842,100 in June and $294,794,500 in July, 1936. Last month's total represented an increase of 8 per cent over a year ago as contrasted with an increase in June of 37 per cent.

For the seven months ended with July, the cumulative total aggregates $1,815,253,900, or 19 per cent over the $1,532,075,700 for the similar 1936 period. Of the 1937 volume, residential building was $597,-450,500 or 46.8 per cent over the $406,838,300 in 1936.

Of the July volume $81,046,000 was for residential building, $138,-085,500 for non-residential building, and $102,493,200 for civil engineering projects, i. e., public works and public utilities. The residential total compares with $71,993,700 for July, 1936 and $92,078,100 for June of this year.

The July non-residential total was about 92 per cent greater than July last year, and exceeded June, 1937, total of $124,837,000 by about 10 per cent. Civil engineering projects started in July fell materially below the $126,615,800 a year ago and were little better than the $99,-927,000 for June, this year.

Texas Railroads Get Injunction

The Texas & Pacific and eight other principal railroads of Texas have obtained temporary injunctions in the federal courts here restraining the state tax board from certifying its intangible valuation assessments to the various counties for taxation purposes.

The complaining lines asserted that the board has sought to increase their respective intangible assets to a total of $30,737,200 this year from the final assessments of $30,984,500 for last year.

July Net Sales Up

New England Industries Build New England Prosperity

Wages paid in New England industries are but little below that of this time in 1929. The buying power of these wages is now 20 per cent greater than during that peak period.

Our Cotton Mills, Our Woolen and Worsted Mills, Our Boot and Shoe Factories, Our Machine Shops and All Other Industries Have Supplied the Life Blood of New England Prosperity.

Accounting Clarity Sought

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
(Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service)

New York, Aug. 14 — Thoughtful business executives and accountants in various parts of the country are promoting a movement to put corporate accounts in a new dress so that the attacks on business by politicians and social critics may be better answered.

There is a widespread feeling that conventional accounting conceals vital factual data which would be helpful in straightening out misconceptions by workers and business haters. Heretofore, accounting has been too often subordinated to efforts of sponsors of securities to promote a speculative interest in company stocks and bonds.

Giving expression to the growing demand for more illuminating corporate reports, Stephen Gilman, vice-president of the International Accountants Society, Inc., Chicago, in a message to this column declared:

"If we agree that annual reports of corporations should give further emphasis to earnings and taxes we then find two further problems to be solved: 1. The attitude of corporation managers and directors toward annual reports and, 2. the conservatism of the certified public accountant.

"I am in receipt of a goodly number of annual reports of large corporations, and with few exceptions I find them to be stodgy and uninteresting. Generally, the most elementary principles of good business writing have been ignored. The important facts, dramatic figures and vivid comparisons, are completely lacking. The powerful force of graphic illustration has been overlooked.

"It would appear that the first important step in putting life and vigor into corporation reports would be to let the controller or president write the reports and then turn them over to a good advertising man, journalist or public relations counsel for arrangement, emphasis, graphic illustration and general streamlining."

Referring to the overemphasis of profit in conventional reports Mr. Gilman added:

"It is true that by the very nature of cost accounting certain significant totals such as total wages, total taxes, and total depreciation become 'lost' in the final figures through the cost accounting process of apportionment. But this is not a permanent loss of vital totals which can rather easily be brought together as is indicated by the fact that modern accounting report procedure now specifies that the total of depreciation charged of during the fiscal year shall be separately exhibited. It is no more difficult to do the same thing in connection with wages or in connection with taxes. Once the accountant realized the need for these figures he can easily furnish them. His present overemphasis of profits is merely a matter of years of training."

Discussing a new accounting approach, Mr. Gilman said:

"I think it would be rather interesting to reconstruct some of the figures of our large corporations on the theory that wages are of three types: (1) Wages paid to the owners of the business for the use of their savings, (2) wages paid to management, and (3) wages paid to labor. In my own mind it is quite proper to consider all of these items as wages since the capital invested by the stockholders merely represents the stored up sum of somebody's wages.

"The public accountant can also contribute toward a fair showing of facts for discussion by proper employment of averages and the exhibition of data covering a series of fiscal years. It is entirely too easy for the public to forget that the investor always gets the tail end of the bargain.

"During the lean years he gets nothing, while management and labor get regular pay. During the occasional flush years the stockholder gets a substantial return. For purposes of fair comparison the facts should probably be not only for one year but for a series of years."

On Sale After 250-For-1 Splitup

Pittsburgh, Aug. 14 (AP)—The Post-Gazette said today stock of the Hookless Fastener Company of Meadville Pa., would be offered for public sale after a 250-for-1 split-up expected to be approved at a meeting of stockholders October 5.

The newspaper said the offering would be handled by Spencer Trask & Co. of New York and Boston.

The stock was quoted at $3500 a share bid with no sale yesterday, according to the newspaper, which said this was up $500 within a week.

PROFIT Taking Hits STOCKS

STEEL SHARES AHEAD

New York, Aug. 14—Stocks ran into profit selling in today's brief market session but most managed to hurdle this obstacle without much difficulty.

Eastman Kodak, apparently reflecting favorable earnings and talk of a possible split-up, approached the 200-mark with a jump of more than 7 points. The stock was up 3 yesterday and about 17 on the week.

Ahead were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Rubber, Electric Power & Light, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Standard Oil of N. J., Phillips Petroleum, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Baldwin Certificates, American Chain and Zenith Radio.

Chrysler and General Motors were virtually unchanged. A trifle better were Anaconda, Kennecott, Deere, Crucible Steel, American Can and Marx.

CURRENT TOPICS

Building material stocks came in for fresh study as the F. W. Dodge Corporation announced the total value of construction contracts awarded in 37 eastern states in July set a new record for the recovery period.

While the gain in residential building over the 1936 level continued to narrow, contracts for home construction last month were placed at nearly $600,000,000 compared with about $405,000,000 in the same period last year.

Pleasing also to the financial sector were the figures of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York disclosing commercial paper outstanding July 31, closed at $324,700,000, the largest amount for any month since 1930.

Sterling and the French franc were a shade lower at the start of foreign exchange transactions, the former at $4.98 7-16 and the latter at 3.75¼ cents.

Export Copper Price at 14.47 Cents

New York, Aug. 14 (INS)—Export copper sold at 14.47 cents a pound today as compared with a range of 14.30 to 14.57 cents on Friday. Value was light, reflecting the week-end. The price appeared to have steadied somewhat at the current point after several days of declines.

Lead sales were extremely light, reflecting both absence of demand, which usually produces little or no pect to pick up until October, and the normal dullness due to a week-end. Prices remained at 6.35 cents a pound New York and 6.35 cents East St. Louis.

The zinc situation was reported about unchanged. Lightness of sales was attributed to unwilling-ness of producers to sell rather than to any absence of demand. Canadian zinc is reported to be coming into this country over the 1¾-cent tariff barrier. Domestic prices continued at 7.25 cents a pound.

Mass. July Auto Registrations Off

Passenger and commercial car registrations in Massachusetts during July were 3238 less than a year ago, standing at 40,675. Trailer registrations likewise declined, amounting to 1010, against 1331 a year previous. Total fees received during the month were $459,446, against $471,228 last year.

For the eight months of the fiscal year through July 31 registrations totaled 978,552, an increase of 42,971 over the like period a year ago. Trailer registrations are 10,069, or 1611 greater than 1936. Total fees increased to $5,799,703 from $5,622,950 last year.

Comments of Brokers

We think the chances are at least even that the next swing will be reactionary—G. M-P Murphy & Co.

Taking into consideration the fundamentally favorable factors in the business situation, I think the market might advance without much reaction for the next three months.—J. S. Wilson, Jessup&Bal & Co.

Barring unforeseen developments over the week-end, further advance is indicated as that long position should be maintained in anticipation of higher prices.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

We look upon the action of the market as adding substance to our belief that extended and wise movement which prevailed during the past three weeks has represented a period of consolidation prior to a sustained resumption of the uptrend which, in our opinion, is now definitely under way.—J. F. Malloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

It is our impression that the market as measured by the industrial average, can move within closer range of the year's high before meeting any particularly serious resistance.—J. S. Bache & Co.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate Inc., International Copyright and all other rights reserved. Distributed by Universal Service.)

Our statement that so great is public interest in Hollywood, that comparatively trifling incidents involving the inmates thereof are deemed worthy of considerable display in the public prints, was immediately confirmed.

An excited gallerylite at a demonstration of the manly art of musing arose in Los Angeles, chucked an empty whisper bottle in the general direction of what we call

These flying splinters slightly nicked a couple of cash customers of more or less prominence in the movie colony, causing the old pal, Mr. Al Jolson, to leap up crying out challenge to the bottle hurler, and, of course, did not accept. These bottle hurlers are always strangely reticent, and inarticulate, under challenge.

The metropolitan newspapers played this incident up big. Much bigger, perhaps, than the incident justified, though we are not minimizing the possible consequences of any random bottle throwing.

However, this very play proves our case as expounded, that anything that has to do with Hollywood folks gets plenty of attention because it interests the public more than any other topic of the times.

NO SPECIAL TARGET

The newspaper reports of the bottle throwing indicate that the thrower had no special target in view when he let the bottle fly. Along Jacobs' Beach, in New York, where the boulevardiers of the boul bash hang out, they were reading between the lines.

The boulevardiers noted that in the roped arena at the moment of the throwing, acting as referee, was Mr. Max Baer, former heavyweight champion of the whole world, and some of the boulevardiers opined that perhaps the thrower was one of the innocent bystanders the night Mr. Baer fought Joe Louis, and that the memory of Mr. Baer's performance caused his wife's face lose all control of himself, and start throwing.

If Mr. Baer referees anything like he fought that night, we will never attend one of his performances save as a spectator in the most remote bleacher.

READY TO CHALLENGE

However, this has nothing to do with our thesis, in which we argue again the news interest value of the name of Hollywood.

We are quite sure the metropolitan press would have made no great stir about the matter had the story been written by someone of no higher connection than ever some ringsider not connected with Hollywood—say, for instance, Mr. Marcus Aurelius Kelly, the red-headed rooster of the arroyas.

But, we are just as sure that Mr. Kelly would have made a big story of it. He would have been up and challenging quicker than Mr. Jolson. Mr. Kelly would be mighty good and sore at anybody who threw a whiskey bottle at him empty.

We have these gallery throwings in New York at our fistic frolics, and the newspapers make no big fuss about them. The last throwing we had was not a bottle, but a jackknife, which so narrowly missed shaving off Mr. Dan'l Parker's cherished moustache that Mr. Parker has since harbored the suspicion that the throwing was by someone jealous of his duster.

The authorities were going to make an investigation of the incident, and prosecute somebody, but the material evidence, which is to say the knife, disappeared.

HANDY FOR PENCILS

Mr. Murray Lewin, the boxing writer, pocketed it and has since been using it to sharpen his lead pencils. Mr. Lewin says it is as good a knife as he ever owned, and he is always on the lookout for one.

We once had a man throw a prune right at us and the juice splattered wholly unnoticed by the public prints. The fighter who was thrown at was Mr. Owlin Chapdelaine, better known in those days as Jack Delaney, the light heavyweight gladiator of some renown.

It was the night Mr. Delaney fought Mr. Paul Berlenbach in Madison Square Garden, and we had stood for general consultation that Mr. Berlenbach would utterly devastate Mr. Delaney, a statement which seemed to irk one of Mr. Delaney's manager, an Italian gentleman named Mr. Lenny.

"Just for that," Mr. Lenny said to us, "I'm going to have Mr. Delaney knock Mr. Berlenbach right in your lap."

While awaiting the opening bell, Mr. Lenny kept his word, and put Mr. Delaney's corner pointing us out to the gladiator as we sat in the press section with the keener hung on the edge of the ring.

MISSES TARGET

It was not long thereafter that Mr. Delaney maneuvered Mr. Berlenbach over in front of us, and let go a right hand that landed on Mr. Berlenbach's last shave, and seemed to lift Mr. Berlenbach from the floor and start him in our direction.

We ducked under the press bench. When we came up the fight was over, Mr. Delaney was the victor, and Mr. Lenny was shaking his head in disappointment because Mr. Berlenbach did not quite carry to our range though he came close enough for us to hear him sigh "Hup" as he landed.

Democrats Need Good Book Agent

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

There is still some agitation over the popular-priced Democratic convention books.

* * *

Each one cost a measly two hundred and fifty bobs. We have looked the matter up and can assure the retail trade it violates no conventions.

* * *

Sir Walter Scott wrote books to get himself out of debt. And why can't the Democrats go in for a little historical romance?

* * *

The only objection we see is the price. There seems to be no limit to their limited editions.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS—Department of Public Works. Notice is hereby given that proposals will be received by the Department of Public Works at its office, 4th Floor, 100 Nashua St., Boston, Mass., until 12 o'clock noon (D.S.T.) Tuesday, August 24, 1937, and then and there be publicly opened and read. The work to be done is the construction of four (4) pier jetties as shown on Department and one (1) stone jetty as shown on Plan No. 2 on the north side of Dennis. It is estimated that about fifteen hundred (1500) tons of stone, rip rap and chips will be required to complete the construction. Copies of proposals may be had upon the blank forms furnished by the Department, and may be seen at the Department where plans and specifications also may be examined relative to the work may be obtained. A charge of Two Dollars ($2.00) will be made for the plans and specifications, which charge will be refunded only to those who submit a formal bid for the proposal on the form provided. The refund to be made within ten days after the bids are opened. Each bidder will be required to give to the Department satisfactory assurance of his competency, experience and responsibility. Particular attention is called to the requirements relating to the use of Section XXII of the specifications relating to the employment of labor. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for five per cent (5%) of the amount of the bid, as determined by the Commissioner of Labor and Industries, under the provisions of Chapter 441 of the Acts of 1935. The Commonwealth reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive any defect or informality in any bid. The decision of the Department of Public Works shall be final. LIAM J. CALLAHAN, Commissioner. BERNARD S. HALE, FRANK A. KANE, Associate Commissioners.

Everybody's Birthday

MASSACHUSETTS' observance of the sesquicentennial of the United States Constitution should be the year's OUTSTANDING EVENT in New England.

Every man, woman and child should consider it his duty to attend the monster patriotic meeting on historic Boston Common Friday, September 17.

This meeting, in which citizens of every race and creed will join, will be a general expression of gratitude for the liberty and freedom that have endured for one hundred and fifty years in constitutional America.

To the sesqui-centennial program Governor Hurley has made an excellent contribution. He suggests the biggest parade ever held in the Commonwealth.

And to march in it, he invites the officials of all cities and towns, World War veterans, the National Guard, patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations, and delegations representing every church.

He makes the further suggestion that all schools in the State be closed at noon on that day to permit students to come to Boston.

AN enthusiastic supporter of the plans to give the Constitution's birthday the dignity and prominence it merits is His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell, who writes:

"The committee members have my sincerest and best wishes in this undertaking, and I know that citizens of this Commonwealth will do their utmost to make the event a memorable one."

Another eminent supporter is the Rev. Leroy Coons, D. D., superintendent of the Universalist Churches in Massachusetts, who adds:

"It was in the Bay State that a group of God-fearing settlers founded Boston as a refuge for those who sought to worship God as their conscience dictated.

"I trust that every religious body in Massachusetts will co-operate and make this 150th observance one to be long remembered."

THE Constitution's 150th birthday is an occasion that concerns every person. In a large sense, it is EVERYBODY'S BIRTHDAY. For the individual's rights to work, to own property, to worship God—even to live one's own life are linked irrevocably with the Constitution and its endurance.

Each, therefore, should do his part to make it the great and significant day it deserves to be.

A Truly Great Service

BRITONS who know their history will see a striking similarity between the Boston Tea Party of nearly two centuries ago and the Faneuil Hall protest meeting of two weeks ago.

The Tea Party informed the government of King George III that Americans would not tolerate oppression.

The protest meeting sponsored by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser, was the kind of event that causes the present administration in Washington also to inform the government of another George that Americans WILL STILL NOT TOLERATE OPPRESSION.

The hundreds of Bostonians who went to Faneuil Hall and voiced their opposition to Great Britain's proposal to partition Palestine rendered a truly great service to the CAUSE OF JEWISH FREEDOM THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

The strongly worded note that this country has addressed to the British Foreign Secretary should cause England to wake up to the fact that the world will not permit her to carve the Holy Land to suit her political purposes.

"Sauce For the Goose"

Some time ago our Senators, seeking more money to spend, adopted a plan to levy a special tax on all Granite State owners of trucks operating in this State.

We thought we were the gander.

Now, New Hampshire retaliates by writing a law to impose a similar assessment on all Massachusetts owners of trucks that do business in New Hampshire territory.

So, instead of being the gander, we look more like the goose.

For, according to the latest figures, the Lumber of Bay State trucks that go into the Granite State is larger than the number of Granite State trucks that come into the Bay State.

We Build Cotton Roads

James E. Lawrence, maintenance engineer for the State Department of Public Works, describes tests now being made in Wilmington and New Marlboro.

"A cotton road," he explains, "is an ordinary bituminous surface, reinforced with a heavy fabric membrane. The cotton acts mainly as a reinforcement."

He adds that his experiments have been so successful that they point to a very extensive use of cotton in highway construction throughout the country.

This is encouraging. Massachusetts, with many of the world's biggest and best factories, is able to manufacture millions of yards of cloth for roads.

Let's hope we do, the sooner the better. Our textile cities and their thousands of workers will welcome the prosperity that ought to come with increased consumption of cotton.

Aerial Death Traps

What we need and what we must have are airports as efficient as the ships that use them.

Mr. John Moynahan, the artist, permits high-tension power wires to stand out in their FULL MENACE, and, close by, draws the wreckage of the demolished air liner.

The forceful lesson that results should interest the nation, responsible Federal, State and municipal authorities especially. For wires strung on poles near airports anywhere are DEATH TRAPS that sooner or later catch unsuspecting victims.

The Daytona Beach tragedy was not the first of its kind in the country, though there have been few more regrettable.

Last April 14, Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, as president, accepted for his pilots the National Safety Council's medal.

The award was made because planes of the Eastern Airlines had been flown, FLAWLESSLY, 141,794,894 passenger miles.

But last Tuesday, AFTER HIGH-TENSION POWER WIRES HAD BEEN ERECTED, a crash did occur, with three, including the pilot and co-pilot, killed and six injured.

The trouble with this country is that too many persons have slumbered while aviation continued its ceaseless progress. We foolishly think we can carry on a great industry with equipment in no way adequate.

It were as though we tried to pattern our modern roads after the covered-wagon trails of a century ago.

What we need and what we must have are airports as efficient as the ships that use them.

We must have more and more landing fields—MORE EMERGENCY LANDING FIELDS, more lights and beacons on flying routes and areas adjacent to them, improved facilities for observing and reporting weather conditions, and reliable TWO-WAY radio communication between every plane and every airport.

This program for aviation safety should be provided NOW. As a progressive nation whose prosperity and security depend so much on flying, we cannot afford to delay longer or to sacrifice more lives on the altar of official carelessness.

Our insistence has brought results; many obstructions have been removed. YET THERE IS STILL A VAST WORK TO BE DONE.

The Daytona Beach tragedy must be a stark warning to city as well as State and Federal authorities, everywhere, that not only should EXISTING hazards to air safety be abolished immediately, but that new laws and regulations will have to be established and ENFORCED to prevent death traps from being set up by anybody.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

At Saratoga Springs the other day, under the kindly wing of Frank H. Stevens, who has, I think, more friends than any other man in America, I visited the racing stable of Samuel M. Riddle of Philadelphia. There I paid homage to a great thoroughbred, War Admiral, son of Man o' War.

There's something about these equine aristocrats that stir the imagination. So much grace. So much delicacy. So much beauty of line. And so much courage, for the truly great will run till they drop, as long as the stout heart beats. The Admiral, badly hurt in his last race, is coming along nicely and will again appear before the curtain on the gayest and most colorful race meet in America, historic Saratoga—so little changed over the sweep of a century
